SHIPS CRASH, CALL FOR HELP BY WIRELESS THEN DISAPPEAR

HOWARD GUILTY; SENT UP FOR LIFE

Verdict of Jury Is Murder in Second Degree.

NEW BEDFORD, March 10.—William C. Howard was to-day found guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of his wife, Ida, on the night of September 19, last.

The young soldier of Fort Rodman learned his fate a couple of minutes after 12 o'clock. He received the verdict with coolness.

Howard was immediately sentenced to imprisonment for life.

As Grace Sturtevant saved his life when he was tried for the alleged murder of Edward Dewhurst last July, so it is believed, he was saved from the electric chair this time through the testimony of Lena Watson, another of his sweethearts.

The jury reached an agreement at 11:48 after they had been out 14 hours and five minutes. Their all-night session was a noisy one and shouts of their talk could be heard on the outside of the room.

It was rumored that they stood 11 to 1 for conviction of murder in the first degree. It was reported that Juror Johnson was the one who stood out against sending the soldier to the electric chair.

The jury signified that they had reached a verdict by pressing on the door. Deputy Sheriff Sweeney called High Sheriff Edwin D. Peabody, who notified Judges Sanderson and Crosby. The prisoner, who was in an adjoining room, was brought into court at 11:57. He was handcuffed to the arm of Prison Keeper J. Edward Devine.

The jury filed into their seats in the box at 11:59, and a minute later the Judges ascended to the bench. Court Clerk Peabody called the names of the jurors.

Takes Verdict Coolly.

On a chair looking at the prisoner, said: "Prisoner, stand up." Howard did so. Continuing the clerk said:

"Mr. Foreman, look upon the prisoner. Prisoner, look upon the foreman. Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," replied Foreman Hatch.

"Prisoner, raise your right hand." Howard did so.

"Mr. Foreman, what say you—is the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty of murder in the second degree," replied Foreman Hatch in a clear voice.

JUDGE LETS OIL TRUST GO FREE

$29,000,000 Suit Is Dismissed by the Court.

"Judge Landis will be dead before the fine is paid."—John D. Rockefeller in July, 1907.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Judge A. B. Anderson today ended the retrial of the Standard Oil company case and ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on all the counts in the indictment. The decision of Judge Anderson followed several decisions yesterday and earlier to-day in which he knocked the props from under the governments case.

To-day when court opened special counsel James F. Wilkerson, who has been assisting District Attorney Sims in the retrial of the famous case began a long argument that it was in the nature of a last attempt.

After Mr. Wilkerson had concluded Judge Anderson announced that he still did not believe that there had been enough proof adduced to support the allegations in the indictments.

"As I view the matter the proof to support these counts absolutely fails," said the court. "I deem them fatal errors," he concluded, after summing up his reasons for his decision.

Asks For Verdict.

"It does not seem that it would be of any use for the Government to continue along those lines," said Mr. Wilkerson. Attorney John S. Miller for the Standard Oil Company interrupted. "If the Government is abandoning the case I would like to have a verdict entered," he said.

"As the courts ruling that there is a single variance between the allegations and the proof," asked Mr. Wilkerson.

"Yes," answered Judge Anderson.

Then turning to the bailiff, he said: "Call Mary Irving to the jury."

When Lee Jury reached the box Judge Anderson announced that he had decided to end the case and instructed for the verdict of "not guilty."

The decision marks the end of the famous Chicago and Alton case in which Judge Landis imposed a fine of $29,240,000 fine.

Imposed by Judge Landis.

The $29,000,000 fine was originally imposed by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in the United States Circuit Court of the Northern District of Illinois, but it was imposed upon the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. This made the opening for the Standard Oil's appeal. The Standard Oil attorney contended that the fine if imposed at all should have been imposed on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and that this concern was unable to pay any such fine as $29,000,000. This view was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of appeals which set aside the fine.

The appellate court differed on three vital points from the trial court. It was held that Judge Landis had excluded evidence for the Standard Oil Company of Indiana which should have been admitted to show intent in the rate paid by the company on oil; that he had erred in considering each car load a separate offence and in imposing the maximum fine for the first offense he abused the discretion vested in his court.

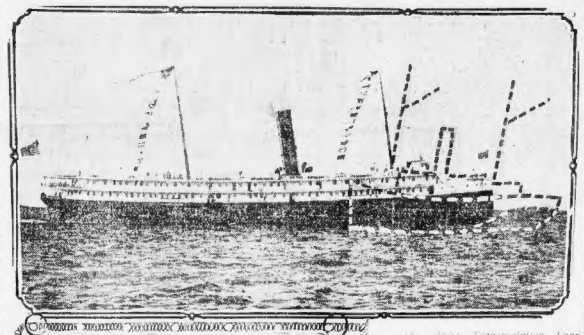
No Word from the Portland Liner, Horatio Hall, Since 9:20 a. m., When She Reported She Was Cut Below the Water Line and Asked for Help.

RESCUING SHIPS CAN'T FIND HER; DIMOCK'S FATE ALSO UNKNOWN



The Metropolitan liner, H. F. Dimock, Boston bound from New York.

The Boston Transportation liner, Horatio Hall.

The big coast line steamers, the Horatio Hall and the H. F. Dimock, the former carrying between ten and fifteen passengers and a crew of fifty-five men, and the latter a crew of thirty-five, crashed in the dense fog off Nantucket early to-day. Grave fears are felt as to the result.

Captain H. F. Jewell of the Hall, sent out a wireless message in which he said that his vessel had been cut under the water line and that he had beached her. He asked for immediate assistance.

The Dimock had no wireless apparatus and the fate of that vessel is not known. She may have been badly injured and may have been sunk.

The revenue cutters Gresham, which was off Cape Cod, and the Acushnet, which lay at Newport, hurried to the scene of the accident, which was reported to have taken place at Great Point.

Wireless messages received from the Gresham up to noon were to the effect that neither of the colliding ships could be found.

As the fog is very thick and the sea rough, it is feared that both of the steamers may have gone down. Life savers began a search of the shore between Watch Hill and Newport to see if they could get any trace of the ships, or discover any wreckage from the vessels.

The Horatio Hall belongs to the Maine Steamship Company, and left Portland at 10:30 o'clock last night, being delayed four hours in starting be-

DIMOCK RESCUES HALL'S CREW AND GOES AHEAD

The H. F. Dimock, the big metropolitan freight steamer which was in collision with the Horatio Hall at 7 o'clock this morning off Great Point, Nantucket, arrived at Chatham late this afternoon. The Dimock was badly injured but managed to keep afloat. She had rescued the passengers and crew of the Horatio Hall, with the exception of the captain of the Hall and one man, who remained on her. One boat load of the passengers has been landed at Chatham by life-savers.

JOHNSON WOULD BOX JEFFRIES IN NEW YORK

By TAD.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Jack Johnson jumped off the boat at Vancouver, and before he had even made a change of clothes rushed to a telegraph office to challenge his rival for heavyweight honors, Jim Jeffries. The following wire was received from the colored champion last evening:

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 9—Tad, New York, U. S. A. Will box Jeffries in New York before club offering best inducements. Will let Him go with ten-round bout or fight here on Coast in forty-five round battle. Am willing to box before I leave for London. Answer immediately.
JACK JOHNSON.
Heavyweight Champion of World.

It looks as though he meant business and was willing to trade things with the boilermaker from Los Angeles, and incidentally gather a few "simoleons."

Jeffries and Johnson for ten rounds here in New York would certainly pack Madison Square Garden from pit to dome, and if either Harry Pollok or Pat Powers can persuade Jeff to talk fight they will throw down the Marathon runners so fast that it will make you dizzy. This fight would draw in the neighborhood of $100,000, and as far as interest down it would make Roosevelt's African trip look like a slide show in comparison.

Jeff's last appearance in the ring around here was at Coney Island nine years ago, when he knocked Jim Corbett out in seventeen rounds.

Some of the wise betters figure that Johnson would rule 10 to 7 favorite over Jeff, as the ten-round thing would be more to his liking, as he would be at top speed all the way. In a longer fight the others argue that Jeff's strength would wear the colored man down and that before the thirteenth round was reached Jeff would have regained the crown that he tossed away.

Billy Gibson was wild with excitement when the news was told him, and said that he would give the pair 75 per cent. of the door if he could get the go for the Fairmont Club. Billy said that if he could get the bout he was sure of having a $60,000 house, as he could easily pack in 8,000 members and at $20 a seat would not have room for extra orders.

BOSTON TEAM 30 MILES BACK OF FRENCHMEN

SIXTIETH HOUR.

	Miles.	Laps.
Cibot and Orphee	356	9
Davis and Metkus	339	6
Feegan and Curtis	330	10

Corri and Hegelman	306	1

NEW YORK, March 10.—Twelve teams were still in the six-day go-as-you-please race this morning, with the Frenchmen, Cibot and Orphee, well in the lead and gaining slowly. Davis and Metkus were in second place, and the Irish team, Feegan and Curtis, were third. The Boston team, Dineen and Prouty, were fourth.

At the fifty-ninth hour the French team was nearly eighteen miles ahead of Davis and Metkus, with the Boston men in fourth place, more than thirty miles behind the leaders. The Frenchmen are going strong and appear to be standing the terrible strain better than any of the other contestants.

'DOC' GESSLER ARRIVES AT HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 10.—"Doc" Gessler, whose absence has furnished a seven-day mystery, cleared up the tangled plot to-day by appearing on the scene. The captain of the Red Sox registered as H. H. Gessler, M. D., at the Majestic Hotel, and then went out to see the Red Sox players practice.

He was in uniform this afternoon.

DEMAND READY FACTS ABOUT STATE WARDS

Representative J. J. Good of Boston appeared before the Legislative Committee on Charitable Institutions to-day in favor of his own petition for legislation to provide that the minor wards department of the State Board of Charity shall furnish full information as to the location of such wards upon application by a clergyman or by the Representative or Senator from the district where such minor wards formerly lived. He cited cases where a hardship had been worked through the fact that information in regard to the location of wards had been refused or where it was impossible to get it.

HOWARD GUILTY OF WIFE'S DEATH; SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR LIFE

There was a moment of tense stillness. There were a dozen or more women in the courtroom, the aisle nearly filled with men. The prisoner took the verdict coolly. He never changed color.

Judge Thanks Jurors.

Judge Crosby then arose and addressing the jury through its foreman said:

"Before you are discharged I ought to say to you that any comment on the painstaking, careful and faithful services you have rendered and I trust that the verdict reaches the approval of your conscience, which no doubt it does.

Immediately District Attorney Swift addressed the court, saying:

"The verdict of the jury having been returned and the statute requiring that sentence be imposed, I now move that the prisoner be sentenced."

Howard started visibly as the District Attorney made the motion and slowly settled back into his seat.

Judge Crosby again rose, and this time, looking directly at Howard, said: "William C. Howard, have you anything to say before your sentence is pronounced?"

Howard tried to speak, but seemed unable to find his voice. After a pause, he said: "No, sir. I guess not."

This was said in a clear voice, and after he had finished he looked at Keeper Taylor and then sat down.

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Judge Crosby conferred for a moment with Judge Sanderson and then handed Howard's commitment papers to Clerk Ware. The clerk read Howard's sentence as follows:

"William C. Howard, you are sentenced to a term of imprisonment for the rest of your life, the first day to be solitary confinement and the rest of the time to be spent at hard labor."

Special Notice.

The Best Recipe for Coughs.

ONE cent's worth of horehound, one cent's worth of lemon, one cent's worth of honey, one cent's worth of menthol, one cent's worth of eucalyptus oil, and a little sugar makes the best cough drops; can be obtained from any druggist prepared in 5-cent packages. Ask for FORD'S CHERRIA.

The prisoner was then formally turned over to Sheriff Evans. Attorney Morton asked for thirty days in which to file exceptions and was given until May 1st in which to do it. Court adjourned at 12:30.

Lawyer Morton shook hands with Howard and said: "I'm sorry you lost, Howard."

Howard made no reply. He was then handcuffed to Keeper Taylor and at 12:50 left the court house by the Court street side and was driven to the Bristol County jail. Over 400 people were waiting for his appearance, but no demonstration was made.

Change Jury's Room.

The jury which last night deliberated in the outer room of the court was to-day transferred under orders of Judge Crosby and Sanderson to an inner room in the court house where not a sound of what took place among the twelve men could reach the public.

The two judges came to the court room at 9:46 o'clock to-day and called Clerk Sheriff Evans and a conference followed. The judges had learned that crowds had lined around the court house under the window where the Howard jury was deliberating and that stories of what was taking place among the twelve men were being told on the street.

Within a short time following the talk between the judges and the High Sheriff the jury was taken to a room where there was no chance of anything they said being overheard.

The jury was given the case last night at 9:45 o'clock. The first time the twelve men gave over their discussion was at 7:10 o'clock this morning when they took food in an adjoining jury room. At that time they plainly showed the effects of the strain under which they are working. They were worn and disheveled.

Howard Sleeps Well.

Judges Sanderson and Crosby remained at the court house until midnight. When they left there Howard was walked away to the Bristol County Jail by a keeper. He had lost much of his stolid look, but in spite of the day's anxiety he slept well and ate a good breakfast.

The jury took but forty minutes for their breakfast in the vacant jury room where High Sheriff Evans himself acted as waiter for the twelve men. At 7:50 they returned to their jury room where they began their discussion which so far seems to be without any result.

The figures 18 play a curiously prominent part in Howard's trial for his life.

The first juror accepted was the 18th man called; the case went to the jury on the 18th day of its trial; Judge Crosby's charge ended at 9:18 o'clock last night; Howard had 18 sweethearts according to the list of names found in his memorandum book; Howard's age is 28 years—twice thirteen.

Finally, the case was begun on Feb. 23.

The jury went out to breakfast at 7:10 and returned to the courthouse at 7:50. The twelve men were taken to the jury room and then resumed their deliberations.

The jury in whose hands was placed the fate of William C. Howard at his trial on a charge of slaying his wife took up its deliberation of the famous case at exactly 9:43 o'clock last night.

In the long night battle that raged in the stuffy little jury room, one juror stood out alone on the struggle to save Howard from the death cloth, according to those who listened to the sounds which came from the room.

Scores stayed in the courtroom all-night long in order to learn at first hand what the finding would be. No one was allowed near the jury room, but in spite of this the wrangling of loud voices could be heard plainly in the corridors.

From the locked jury room could be heard at times the voices of the jurors in angry debate. One man seemed to be doing most of the talking, and his voice at times was strained and hoarse.

At 5:30 o'clock the jury was still dead locked.

While the jurors were deliberating, judges and attorneys were sleeping. Judge Sanderson, who had remained around the courthouse till midnight, went to his hotel, as did Judge Crosby, District Attorney Swift and Attorney James H. Morton, another counsel for Howard, who retired shortly after midnight. All left instructions to be called the moment the jury reached a decision.

In the closing day of the trial there were many dramatic moments, none more dramatic, however, than when Howard made his statement to the jury.

Scores heard Howard make his plea, but none followed him with more intentness than Grace Sturtevant, the soldier's sweetheart, who has aided in the battle to save him.

His statement came after District Attorney Swift had closed with the final argument for the State. He made it after Judge Sanderson had asked him if he had anything to say in his own behalf.

When the Judge's voice had died down Howard arose, and stood at attention with arms at his side, braced in military fashion. He placed his hands on the rail in front of him, and stood silent for a long interval. Then he spoke, his words coming in a moderately loud voice with the southern drawl that is typical of his accent.

"I know that I haven't done right with women," declared Howard, "but I did not have anything to do with the death of my wife."

Then he sat down. He had spoken the last word in his own behalf.

Howard's statement was one of the shortest ever made to a jury by a man on trial for his life. It was simple. It was a brief, but an emphatic denial of the crime which the government charged him with.

It gripped everybody. So intense was the silence in the crowded courtroom when the soldier spoke in his own behalf that the notes of the stenographers' pens as they took down the words, could almost be heard.

After Howard made his statement the court took a short recess. When it came in, Judge Crosby, the senior justice presiding at the trial, delivered the charge. Then, as the clock pointed to 9:43 o'clock, the jury filed out of the courtroom to decide the fate of the accused.

VLADIVOSTOK PORT CLOSED BY RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—Information reached the State department to-day that Russia had closed the port of Vladivostok to all free foreign trade and that henceforth goods shipped to that port will have to pay the prescribed Russian import taxes before they are admitted.

Coming without warning, the action of the Russian government is looked upon as extremely important to the commercial interests of the United States, as well as to European nations and Japan.

The reason given for the action of Russia is that she can supply her needs without offering especial inducements to foreign trade.

CITY AUDITOR FIRST WITNESS IN GRAFT PROBE

The special session of the Suffolk County Grand Jury called by District Attorney Arthur D. Hill to reconsider the graft cases which were passed upon by the body when John B. Moran was active met to-day.

All kinds of speculation were rife at the courthouse as to whether to-day's proding would include the Codman street land deals and the flagstone deals by the City of Boston during the administration of former Mayor Fitzgerald. It is known that the District Attorney intends to follow up the disclosures made by the Boston Finance Commission.

The first witness to go before the grand jury to-day was City Auditor Mitchell. He arrived with a huge pile of books and documents and spent considerable time with the jury.

DIMOCK AND HALL CRASH IN THE FOG OFF NANTUCKET

cause of the storm. Five of the passengers on the vessel were:

Mrs. Ruth Elmstrom of Portland.
Miss Gurli Elmstrom of Portland.
Ssmuel Marie of Portland.
Michael Warren of Portland.
Mr. Marks of the vicinity of Portland.

A leased wire dispatch to the AMERICAN from New York says that Captain Noble, general manager of the Maine Steamship Company, left there this afternoon on the steamship North Star to go to the rescue of the liner Horatio Hall.

"There are ten or fifteen passengers on the steamer," said Captain Noble. "The steamer is equipped with wireless apparatus, but evidently her dynamos have been drowned out. She is either beached near Great Point, Nantucket, or sunk."

A dispatch from Portland says that a wireless report was received there by Agent Herbert A. Clay of the Maine Steamship Company about 9.30 a. m. that the steamer Horatio Hall was in collision early to-day.

The first dispatch gave no further information. It was picked up from the Hall by the revenue cutter Androscoggin.

This message was received by the captain of the revenue cutter Gresham off Cape Cod from Captain Jewell of the Horatio Hall:

"In collision with the H. F. Dimock about 7 o'clock this morning. Cut below the water line. Assistance required at once.

"CAPTAIN JEWELL."

The Gresham started at once for the scene of the accident. The wireless operator on the Gresham sent the message to Captain Bristol, the inspector in charge of the torpedo station at Newport. The captain said that he would send help at once.

"I do not know where the accident occurred yet," said Captain Bristol. "But I shall find out in a short time and will rush help."

Another message was picked up by wireless from the Horatio Hall as follows:

"Captain Noble, Pier 20, East River, New York:

"In collision with the H. F. Dimock 7 o'clock this morning. Ship cut below the waterline. Is on bottom. Send assistance at once. Am anchored off Great Point."

This message was not signed, but it was later learned by the wireless operator that the message came from the Horatio Hall.

The first wireless message received here about 9.20 and the second about 9.30.

At Newport this wireless message was received at 11 o'clock:

"Still unable to locate either the Horatio Hall or the Dimock.

"GRESHAM."

This message was received at the Brant Rock wireless station at Marshfield at 11.40 from the Revenue Cutter Gresham:

"Have not been able to locate Horatio Hall. Message last received came strong indicating we were in vicinity of Hall, but since that time can not get into communication."

(Not Signed).

Anxiety for Dimock.

No news has been received by the officers and officials of the Metropolitan line in this city from the Dimock, late this afternoon. There is a feeling of anxiety among the officials of the line that has made efforts all day to obtain some information of her.

The meagre news which they have been able to receive was all about the Hall. Nothing was heard from the Dimock, and while Agent Apsey maintained an appearance of calmness, it was clear that he was uneasy over the lack of news of the missing steamer.

Agent Apsey and other officials said that they believe that the Dimock was uninjured and that she is proceeding on to Boston.

There was news saying that the Hall had been launched, and as there was no similar report coming from the Dimock, it was believed that she is proceeding on her way.

They argue that if the Hall was near enough to the shore to have been beached, the Dimock would have been beached also as she had been badly stricken.

The officials of the line have been busy all day answering telephone calls and messages concerning the welfare of the men on the Dimock, as the families and relatives are much concerned.

Cruiser to Hunt Ships.

Agent H. A. Clay of Portland, according to a dispatch from there, stated that no further information could be expected from the Horatio Hall, as her wireless apparatus does not include a storage battery as was the case with the wrecked steamer Republic, which enabled that steamer to keep in touch with stations after her engine room was flooded, and that the Hall's outfit was dependent entirely upon a motor. This was put out of commission when the steamer sank.

The government wireless telegraph station at Cape Elizabeth by request of the steamship company notified the Portsmouth and Cape Cod stations to notify all shipping in the vicinity of the steamers to lend assistance. The scout cruiser Birmingham also was picked up off Cape Cod and asked to hunt up the steamers. The revenue cutter Androscoggin started out for the scene.

The Horatio Hall which was built in 1898 is valued at $400,000 and had a cargo on board valued at $100,000.

The steamer was in charge of W. Frank Jewell of Portland, assisted by the following officers: James Parker of New York, mate; Joseph Wells, Portland, chief engineer; Charles Snow of Cuttyhunk and Captain Robert Harding of Portland, pilots.

Fifteen years ago the H. F. Dimock, which crashed into the Horatio Hall, collided with a sloop in Annisquam river, Gloucester, and sank. The yacht sank immediately and was never raised. The accident occurred off Pollock Rip slue, within a few miles of to-day's accident.

Cutter Picked Up "C Q D."

The H. F. Dimock left New York for Boston yesterday evening. She carried a large and valuable miscellaneous cargo. The Horatio Hall is one of the boats of the Maine Transportation Company, doing a passenger and freight business between New York and Portland, Me.

The Horatio Hall sailed from Portland, Me., for New York yesterday evening. She was due in New York today. The revenue cutters Gresham, off the Cape, and the Acushnet, at Buzzards Bay, got the first wireless message from the Hall as soon as the vessels struck. They both started as fast as they dared for the scene of the accident, although the fog was thick enough to be cut with a knife.

Captain John Thompson, the famous skipper of the Harvard in the Summer, is the captain of the Dimock. No record of wise skipper has had more experience than Captain Thompson. He has been in the employ of the Metropolitan Steamship Company for years, and is known as a fearless man and a capable seaman.

The Dimock was built at Chester, Pa., in 1884, while the Hall was built at Philadelphia in 1898. Both vessels are steel built and have water tight compartments.

The Dimock is 276.9 feet in length while the Hall is 296.8. The Dimock had a gross tonnage of 2,625, while that of the Hall is 3,167. The Dimock, with 2,000 indicated horsepower, was capable of 12 or 13 knots per hour, while the Hall, with 1,900 horsepower, could easily make 14 knots

PROPHET OF 1861 A SUICIDE AT 80

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Hinton Rowan Helper, seventy years old, brother of Mrs. Dana Hall of Buenos Ayres from 1863 to 1866, was born in North Carolina in 1829. His prophecy of 1861 was published in pamphlet, entitled "The Impending Crisis," on the eve of the secession war. Just as the war the pamphlet was almost a prophecy. This pamphlet circulated widely and was regarded as second only to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in hastening the war.

MRS. MACKAY LOSES IN WAR FOR SUFFRAGE

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—By a vote of 11 to 2, and despite the personal efforts of Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, the assembly judiciary committee to-day declared against woman suffrage.

"We will not report the measure favorably," declared Chairman Phillips at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Mackay at least succeeded in putting Speaker Wadsworth on record, although she was unable to secure any positive declaration from Gov. Hughes either for or against her cause.

James A. Houston Company

As comparative prices in Boston today are generally exaggerated and therefore misleading, they have been purposely omitted from this store's advertising. On comparison our values will be found to be equal to or better than those offered elsewhere.

New Spring 1909 Merchandise in the First Extraordinary Sale Under the James A. Houston Company's New Method of Non-Comparative Advertising.

1—Planned to excel in every detail the HALF-PRICE SALE of one year ago.

2—Values are probably not equalled, regardless of what contrasts between value and price announced elsewhere.

3—This store's innovation policy of "Non-Comparative Prices" is strictly adhered to, even in proclaiming this most extraordinary event.

4—Marking the introduction of the James A. Houston Company's new method in the first great sale.

5—The public will demonstrate by generous response and widespread co-operation the demand for candor and integrity in advertising.

What Is "Price-Faking?"

"Price-Faking" is the abuse of the comparative method of describing merchandise.

For example: "Suits valued at $40.00 will be sold for $25.00."

It might at first glance appear that this was sincere—

A perfectly legitimate inducement for reading shoppers.

But these offers are presented daily and then the consequent question:

How can merchants afford to do this?

Continually sell their merchandise much below actual value?

Continually accept losses and remain prosperous?

No labored mental process is necessary to draw the conclusion:

The sagacious shopper naturally answers:

"The merchandise so offered is misrepresented—values are exaggerated."

She loses confidence in the reliability and honesty of the advertising.

She becomes one of the large class who demand exact description.

She considers the contest of value getting an insult to her intelligence.

She welcomes the James A. Houston Co.'s policy of omitting comparative prices.

The store that has legitimately featured values for 50 years.

Where value is remembered long after price is forgotten.

MARRIES MAN WHOM HUSBAND HAD THRASHED

NEW YORK, March 10.—A woman and a man whose affection for each other recently caused their divorce from their former mates got a marriage license at the City Hall. They are Mrs. Marie Earnest Wiltbank, No. 65 West Forty-sixth street, this city, and Henry Albert Thomas, No. 32 West Tulpehocken street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

The gossips of Germantown, a fashionable suburb, declared that Mrs. Wiltbank's then husband, Clarence Hulser Wiltbank, thrashed Mr. Thomas one day, and that Mrs. Wiltbank said, soothingly, to Mr. Thomas in the police station:

"Never mind. Everything will be all right."

Prophetic words. Mrs. Wiltbank, thirty-two years old, told the license clerk she was divorced January 12 last. Mr. Thomas, forty years old, said he was divorced February 19 last. They will be married March 30, so everything is turning out "all right."

Mrs. Wiltbank is daughter of Joseph Francis Cottringer. Mr. Wiltbank is a descendant of Bishop William White, the first American to be consecrated an Episcopal bishop, who was chaplain to the Revolutionary Congress—all of which counts for much in Philadelphia. The Wiltbanks lived at No. 100 West Penn street, Germantown.

Mr. Wiltbank, an athlete and boxer, was dining with his father, Henry H. Wiltbank, a member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, at a club, one evening late last July. The conversation turned to Thomas, a young man entered the dining room and whispered something to Mr. Wiltbank, who made him turn pale.

Wiltbank hurried to his home. There he found Thomas, and pitched into him as Jeffries attacks an opponent. Wiltbank's good right fist landed on Thomas's left eye.

Mrs. Wiltbank shrieked, raised such an uproar that the neighbors ran to the windows, expecting what little excitement the fashionable neighborhood knows. Yet Mrs. Wiltbank's husband paused to the slightest degree during the encounter.

Somebody called a physician, Wiltbank made a charge against Thomas. At the police station a surgeon was called to Thomas.

The affair was arranged and—everything is coming on "all right."

STIRLING GETS DIVORCE FROM YANKEE WIFE

EDINBURG, Scotland, March 10.—Alexander Stirling was granted a decree of divorce and the custody of his child today as a result of the most sensational divorce suit ever heard in the British Isles. Mrs. Stirling's cross petition suit for divorce was denied by the court.

Mrs. Stirling was Clara Taylor of Washington, D. C., before her marriage. Miss Taylor was an actress and Stirling fell in love with her while she was playing in London.

Counsel for Mrs. Stirling have given notice they will appeal.

Named Lord Northland.

Mrs. Atherton, named in the wife's cross suit, was termed by counsel "a beautiful woman with a peculiar ability for intrigue."

In his suit against his wife Captain Stirling said that not long after their marriage he learned she was infatuated with Lord Northland. He said that when he accused her of it she wrote him a letter in which she suggested a separation and concluded as follows:

"Don't think me an absolute rotter. I am not; but near it."

Suit Was Sensational.

The trial of the suit was the most sensational held in England in many years. Mrs. Stirling, her husband, Mrs. Atherton and Lord Northland took the witness stand. It was publicly believed that Mrs. Stirling and established a strong case against her husband. When it was implied that he disgraced the greatest affection for Mrs. Atherton and that she seemed to be in love with him.

Mrs. Atherton, who was named by Mrs. Stirling, was divorced by her husband three years ago. She is the famous English Violet Buller.

It was generally believed she would marry Buller, but much to her surprise she married Sir Alec Orme, a noted English stage beauty.

GARDNER LOOMS UP AS CANNON'S RIVAL, SAYS ALFRED HENRY LEWIS

By ALFRED HENRY LEWIS.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Now some person has for the absorbing business of the Speakership of the House, and the great question: "Will Mr. Cannon Yankee or Mr. Lodge, and if the Whitney boss only shoot and die Mr. Sturgis Bigelow he wouldn't be a bad kind of man."

Returning to Mr. Gardner as the combination candidate of Democrats and rebels against Cannon, I am forced to say that his election is by the evidence to say that his election is neighborly gossip. He is regularly in the House. Men like him are not known outside of Him and the inside that's willing to run against Mr. Cannon is likely to come from the inside rather than from the outside. There is truth in the story of that Democratic caucus, when the Republican rebels and Democrats unite upon Mr. Gardner, the speakership knell of Mr. Cannon will sound. The New Jersey statesman has schemers which hasn't happened for to many many years.

There are curious thoughts which grow out of the name of Mr. Gardner willing connection with the speakership. Mr. Gardner and Father-in-Law Lodge are two souls with one single thought. Mr. Gardner would not snatch at the House gavel unless Mr. Lodge approved.

In Lodge's Icy Grip.

And yet Mr. Taft, with Mr. Root and Mr. Knox, favors very quietly the election of Mr. Cannon in the speakership and the re-enactment of those gag rules. Also Mr. Taft favors the illegal and unbinding and he is the most important battle that is to be fought in the Congress. Upon appropriations, canals, navy, the Philippines is his executive to a high degree. And yet he puts the mere use of Mr. Gardner's name in front that Mr. Lodge by opposition to the White House.

The situation is promising of interesting developments. We may yet see Mr. Lodge, Senate ally of Mr. La Follette and Mr. Cummins, and Mr. Knox, Senate colleague of by the same paltry reasons which give Mr. Root and Mr. Knox, also admitted Mr. Lodge's colleagues, Mr. Crane, into their secret conferences instead. Mr. Lodge, left out in the administration cold, hasn't presented the exceptional energy for Mr. Taft in his Back Bay way, and moved of revengeance and with a sting, is managing and manoeuvring with Senate-law Gardner to take possession of the House, in order to be a master stroke if he can accomplish it. From his seat in the Senate controlling the House through Senator Gardner, Mr. Lodge could make the Taft administration a pain in the neck and its Knoxes—eat out of his icy hand.

Storer for Ambassador.

By the way, the gossip relative that the Bellamy Storers, erstwhile of Boston are to go abroad as Ambassadors. That is to say, Mr. Storer will be officially the Ambassador, out of regard to the law in which case Mrs. Storer will go, and Mrs. Storer will accompany Mr. Storer. It is reported that they may have either Paris or Vienna.

As usual, everybody seems to know who is going to lose the White House. Why who is going to get it. For example, no one doubts that Ambassador Reid will be invited home from England, while almost as many believe that Ambassador White has seen his last of Paris. The popular rumor disposes of both these "dipsonats," nor asks who are to succeed them and you are met by silence backed up by a blank and empty stare.

Neither Mr. Reid nor Mr. White has been pleasing to Americans abroad and with every incoming ship fresh charges of pernicious snobbery were formulated against them. Both were accused of bowing upon their knees in toadying efforts to please the English and the French to whom they had been accredited, while no American could get near enough to either to give him a ripe peach.

There are no frills on Ambassadors to Turkey. All there is of him is solidly American. Such stories of Reid as those told by returning Americans about both Mr. Reid and Mr. White have done precisely the contrary of yarns to move one of the rough and ready sort. The Reids and the Whites, Mr. Taft congenitally dislikes, and in the threatened instances of the two Ambassadors, Mr. Root and Mr. Knox, who might, if they chose, guide the Taft impulse into directions favorable to their fortunes appear callous and careless as to what fate overtakes them. The Reids strive to go, but their pocketfuls of money are to be tall-spreading and vacuously strutting in their own pockets, and everything is their way, a problem still in the unsolved air.

SIXTIETH CONGRESS COST $15,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 10.—A low estimate of the cost of the sixtieth Congress places it at $15,000,000. The salaries, mileage, clerk hire and stationery allowances of the ninety-two Senators and 391 Representatives, alone aggregate about $10,000,000. To this must be added the pay for the army of doorkeepers, janitors, messengers, elevator men, stenographers, pages and other employes. The cost of maintaining the Capitol—fuel, janitor service, watchmen, policemen, and a thousand other expenses must be added. The enormous printing bill also goes into the calculation.

RARITAN CANAL OPENED.

BORDENTOWN, March 10.—The Delaware and Raritan Canal has been opened to navigation.

HETTY GREEN FLED BAND OF BLACKMAILERS

NEW YORK, March 10.—Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in America, today for the first time gave her reason for leaving New York and returning to her little Hoboken dry where she made her home with her daughter Sylvia until the latter's marriage. She said they were driven away by blackmailers. She spoke with great tenderness of her daughter and son-in-law who are to make their home abroad and of her nephews.

"My daughter and Mr. Wilks are to make their home in Europe," she said. "I believe they will go abroad shortly the middle of May. They will make their home in Paris and will travel. I've been very lonesome since my daughter left, but I've been too busy to pine," she went on cheerfully.

"Fond of the Children."

"My daughter and I were like two chums. We had no secrets from one another and always confided in each other. I shall probably go back to New York to live after I have my affairs more settled. In fact, New York looks more like home pestered to death at the hotel by blackmailers. One of them, a woman, came to our apartments and demanded $1,000. She said if I did not give her that sum she would publish things in the newspapers that would hurt my daughter. I told her she lied. She knew that I had not been much money and she said she would come and see me again.

"I consulted with the District Attorney about it and we planned to trap her. I would make out a check for $1,000 and give her on the sidewalk. I pulled in a police car to arrest her, but I got her," Mrs. Green added grimly.

"She was terribly worried by the prosecution. She had been penniless while we lived there. As soon as I got things settled I shall go back to New York.

"The children—I mean my daughter and Mr. Wilks—can come over and see me once in a while. I am too busy to go to see them.

"They are in the Bellevue Stratford in Philadelphia now," she said.

"Never Robbed an Orphan."

Mrs. Green spoke of the newspaper misconception and silence to which she and hers have been subjected.

"Please say something that is not against the old people," she said. "We get so little newspaper. I've never robbed an orphan, nor I've helped many a widow. Everything I have done for others has not been published, but I have helped a lot of people who were down.

"I never had a friend to live alone in Hoboken!" asked the reporter.

"No; I am not afraid of any one, except God. And I don't fear him very much because I think I live to the Bible. I was brought up a Quaker. I have held strictly to the Bible. I have always been straight and honest. I am no usurer. When I have loaned money it has always been at a legal rate of interest."

The Best Spring Medicine

It is as easy to prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine as it is to say it.

Spring Ailments are blood ailments—that is, they arise from an impure impoverished, devitalized condition of the blood; and Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood as no other medicine does.

There is a Solid Foundation for this claim, in the more than 40,000 testimonials of radical and permanent cures by this medicine, received in two years, this record being unparalleled in medical history.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all spring humors, all eruptions, clears the complexion, creates an appetite, aids the digestion, relieves that tired feeling, gives vigor and vim.

Begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla today. Get it in the usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 10.—Several persons were ducked by the brilliant sunshine to take a dip in the ocean. Many rolling chairs were stopped in front of the Hotel Dennis in the morning promenade hour while the occupants watched curiously the men in bathing suits who risked running into the surf so early in March. ROOSEVELT IN JAM ON FIRST DAY AS EDITOR

NEW YORK, March 10.—Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt elbowed his way through a rush-hour crowd on Thirty-fourth street ferryboat and then swung on a strap on a Thirty-fourth street cross-town car just like any plain commuter today when he came to New York from Oyster Bay to look after some of his work as an outlook editor.

For the first time in seven years Mr. Roosevelt was unattended by secret service men and spurned special cars, automobiles and cabs. He was jammed against the rail on the ferryboat across from Long Island City and no one offered to give him a seat in the Thirty-fourth street car. He smiled through it all and seemed rather to enjoy his new experience.

The ex-President was accompanied to New York by Miss Corinth Langdon, the pretty claim of Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who has been with the latter at Oyster Bay since Mr. Roosevelt's return there from Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt wore a dark mixed gray sack suit and a black overcoat with a velvet collar. He had on the "Roosevelt" collar, with the usual black tie, and wore a black soft hat. His trousers were pleasantly sprinkled with Oyster Bay sand when he was he walked from the pony trap.

He also wore the same spectacles under his arm Sieger's "Introduction to Economics," but did not read it on the way to the city.

It was the first time since he became a private citizen that he had ventured away from Oyster Bay. He was up somewhat earlier than usual, and immediately after breakfast went to the village, where he boarded the 7:58 o'clock express for New York. No one in the village knew of his intention to go to the city and there were few persons at the station. Those who did shake hands with him were men with whom he is personally acquainted.

The only being ex-President occupied a seat in the chair car of the "Millionaires' Express." He purchased several morning newspapers at the news-stand to read on the way down. He was accompanied by his son Kermit, who is to go with him to Africa. Kermit has been making trips to the city daily for the purpose of having his teeth thoroughly repaired before starting for Africa.

This was his first visit he has made to the Outlook office since he became associated with the magazine. The name of Theodore Roosevelt is printed in gold on one of the office doors.

SHORTEST WILL HAS 18 WORDS

The shortest will ever filed in the courts of Massachusetts was allowed by Judge James Pitt of the Dedham Probate Court today, that of Henry T. Bicknell of North Weymouth.

It took just eighteen words for the late Weymouth man to make his wishes known, and the will stands the test, too.

This remarkably brief document reads: "To my wife, Margaret B. Bicknell, all the property which I may die possessed, both real and personal."

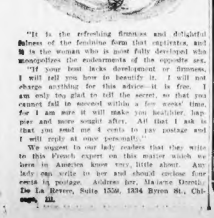
"The number of undeveloped women in America is astonishing," says Mme. Dorothy De La Revere.

"I am here in America to teach your beautiful fated women that the few days and attain so much as the form, and I am ready to tell any woman who will write me, how the French society women and leading actresses develop their breasts and fill out the hollows of the neck, by what is admitted by authorities to be the only scientific, certain method known.



"It is the refreshing firmness and delightful fulness of the feminine form that captivates, and it is the woman who is most fully developed who approaches the requirements of the Venus de Milo.

"If your bust lacks development or firmness, I will tell you how to remedy it. I will not charge anything for this advice—it is free. I am only too glad to tell the secret, so that you cannot fail to succeed with a few weeks' time, for I am sure it will make you healthier, happier and more sought after. SHOULD WOMEN HAVE RIGHT TO VOTE?

BOSTON AMERICAN GIVES WOMEN CHANCE TO TELL WHY THEY WANT BALLOT

By ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL, one of the foremost advocates of suffrage for women, to-day tells to the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN why women should be given the right to vote. She enthusiastically indorses the movement started by the AMERICAN to ascertain expression of opinion on the subject. Miss Blackwell's article is a statement from a woman who has always been in the fight to secure equal suffrage.

Agitation for woman suffrage is now compelling general attention in both England and the United States. The advocacy of woman's right to vote is no longer a fad. It is a crusade. And the crusaders are showing an astonishing willingness to suffer for their faith.

To what extent do these agitators represent their sex?

To answer that question the AMERICAN is conducting a referendum. In this referendum WOMEN ALONE HAVE THE RIGHT TO VOTE. By their ballots they can make it plain whether a majority or minority of their sex favor suffrage for women.

When you have recorded your preference on the ballot below, cut the ballot out and forward it to Referendum Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street.

To aid those women who have not already a conviction on the question in making up their minds whether suffrage for their sex would be of benefit or disadvantage, the AMERICAN is printing articles on both sides of the suffrage question from prominent writers of both sexes.

The reasons why women should vote are the same as the reasons why men should vote—the same in the long run as those leading a republic rather than a monarchy. It is fair and right that the people who must pay the taxes should have a voice (and a vote) in choosing the lawmakers, and that those who must pay the taxes should have a voice (and a vote) in choosing the way in which the money shall be spent.

In deciding what is to be done, where everybody's interests are concerned, we take everybody's opinion, and then go according to the wish of the majority. As we cannot suit everybody, we do what will suit the greatest number. That seems to be, on the whole, the fairest way. A vote is simply an expression of opinion.

In thus taking a vote to get at the wish of the majority, certain classes of persons are passed over, those opinions have no record and therefore are thought not to be worth counting. In most of our States, those classes are children, idiots, lunatics, criminals—and women. There are good and sufficient reasons for making all these exceptions, but the last.

Of course, no account is to be taken of the opinions of children, insane persons, or criminals. Is there any equally good reason why no account should be taken of the opinions of women? The object of taking a vote is to get at the wish of the majority, and it is clear that the only fair and accurate way is for each grown person to have one vote.

Women Unlike Men.

A man is by nature too different from a woman to be able to represent her. The two creatures are unlike. Whatever his good will, he cannot fully put himself in a woman's place and look at things exactly from her point of view. To say this is no more a reflection upon his mental or moral ability than it would be a reflection upon his musical ability to say that he cannot sing both soprano and bass. He cannot sing in women's voice. Unless men and women should ever become [illegible] which would be regrettable and monotonous, women must either be unrepresented or represent themselves.

It is often argued that giving women the vote would merely double the vote, both the intelligent ballot and the vote, and would produce no change in the result. Statistics published by the National Bureau of Education, show that every year more girls graduate from high schools in every State are graduating more girls than boys, some of them two or three times as many. Because of the growing tendency to take boys out of school earlier in order to put them into business, girls are getting more education than boys. Equal suffrage would increase the proportion of voters who have received more than an elementary education.

The same objection is made of giving the vote to foreign born women, but as there are in the United States more than three times as many native born women as there are foreign born men and women together, the former class is more foreign born men than there are women, giving the vote to women would in fact largely increase the proportion of native born voters. Moreover, it has been distinctly shown by experience that foreign born women allow no desire to vote until after they have become thoroughly Americanized.

Criminal Women Small.

All the statistics of crime show that the number of criminal women is very small, as compared with the number of criminal men, so that even should the criminally inclined women care to vote, which is not likely, as people of this class usually prefer to be as inconspicuous as possible, the giving of the vote to women would largely increase the proportion of the moral and law-abiding vote.

Many argue that if women were given the vote they would not use it after the novelty had worn off. Government statistics in all those countries and the states where women vote, show that the women do vote in a large one and in most cases a slightly increasing one. The reports from these places show that equal suffrage for women has had the good effects that its opponents claim it would have, and it has on the whole tended toward a greater amount of legislation along social, moral and educational lines.

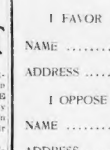
Why I Believe in the Ballot for Women

By LILIAN BELL



I MUST have been born an equal suffragist, but I was a grown woman before I discovered by my sense of humor that the justice of the thing compelled me to see that women must have the ballot.

The first thing which attracted my attention to the matter was the size of the men who were the enemies of suffrage.

You will nearly always find them small men—the little bantam roosters of the barnyard—men whose pompous views on life are inflated, because of Nature's stinginess in breadth and brawn.

In mind they are always vain and patronizing. They are seldom educated, which does not mean that they may not be graduates of famous colleges—for many an educated man never went to school after he was twelve years old. I mean that no educated man and no thinking and unselfish woman ever deny that women have a moral right to the ballot, whether they ever exercise that right or not.

The first time I ever remember having a definite thought on the subject was when, one evening at a ball, I happened to hear six men, one after the other, express their views on the absurdity of women wanting the vote.

All tall women know the size of the men whom tall women have to dance with. I stooped down and looked at those little creatures and noted that some of them were not even strong enough, physically, to raise a miniature [illegible] yet they were laughing at the idea of women—who are quite strong enough to bear children, yes, not strong enough to bear arms—wanting a voice in the making of the laws and the deciding of whether disease-breeding, brothel-licensing, bribe-taking, public servants should represent us in public life.

It is ignorance which causes many women to believe that only old maids and ill-treated wives want the ballot and that it bespeaks contentment with your husband and your lot to be an anti-suffragist.

False pride, fear and ignorance make many an anti-suffragist at heart, a dire in pain.

There will be many a surprise in the ranks of fatuous husbands when the ballot is a right which wives may exercise at will.

Men understand only what women say. Women understand why women say it. Therefore it is for the brave women, the protected wives of large-souled men, the women who can make money by no man's aid and spend it for no man's permission, the mothers who own their children and you know that in Florida a husband now will wear his unborn child? Oh, you didn't know that? Well, well! and can decide how to educate and rear them, the happy, contented, educated and powerful women of this country, to rout the eyes of women who are fettered and who dare not join us, to obtain a right which, when given, will be no compulsory to use.

Human wisdom, distinctly inspired and now universally lauded, gave freedom and the franchise to the illegally disfranchised negroes of the South, though thousands of selfish voters were raised in protest.

Identical precedent is before us today.

It has always been decided in the history of free countries that taxation without representation was tyranny.

Women are taxed by the bearing of children prodestined to be unequal in the eyes of the law—girl children being an object of sympathy and boy babies a subject of congratulation—and a man-made law creates this distinction and unequal, and denies representation to mothers.

Is this best? Is it right?

MRS. RUTH LEAVITT, BRYAN'S DAUGHTER, WHO WINS DIVORCE

RUTH BRYAN LEAVITT WINS DIVORCE SUIT

LINCOLN, Neb., March 10.—Ruth Bryan Leavitt, eldest daughter of William J. Bryan, has been granted a divorce from her artist husband, William Homer Leavitt.

Judge A. J. Cornish heard the testimony of Mrs. Leavitt and her mother, and after hearing of less than fifteen minutes' duration, issued a decree of absolute divorce. The suit was based solely upon the ground of non-support.

Mrs. Leavitt was questioned by Attorney T. E. Allen, her father's brother-in-law, and former law partner, and testified that her husband, though able-bodied and capable in his profession as a painter, had failed to provide sufficiently to maintain herself and her children.

She testified that it became necessary, shortly after her marriage, in October, 1907, for her parents to contribute to her support, and that on one occasion her father gave her $5,500 in money, the enjoyment of which was shared by her husband.

"My parents even helped us to furnish the house that we established in Denver four years ago," Mrs. Leavitt asserted on the stand. Continuing, she said:

"Mr. Leavitt has been in Paris for a year and a half, during which time he has sent me nothing for the support of himself and my children. The burden has fallen on my parents. But for their help I should have been in want.

"Mr. Leavitt could have supported us at least in comfort, if he had honestly made the effort."

Mrs. Bryan was sworn and gave testimony corroborating that of her daughter.

The court upon the granting of the decree gave Mrs. Leavitt the custody and control of her two children, Ruth, aged four, and Bradfield Bryan, aged two. The father will be permitted, under the decree, to visit the children whenever he desires.

Mr. Leavitt, who is presumed by Mr. Bryan's family to be in Paris, made no appearance, and was not even represented by counsel.

BURY SLAYER AND HIS VICTIM

Lying side by side in simple black caskets, the funeral services of Patrolman Israel F. Splaine and his wife, who was killed by the officer during a fit of temporary insanity, during which he shot himself, were held in the Church of the Sacred Heart, East Boston, to-day.

Solemn High mass of requiem was sung by the Rev. James H. O'Neil, who officiated as celebrant. He was assisted by the Rev. Michael F. Cresdan, deacon, and Rev. Patrick McCarthy, sub-deacon.

Two score of patrolmen from the Hanover street station, where Patrolman Splaine was on duty, officiated as pall bearers. The funeral cortege was headed by a squad of police patrolmen led by Sergt. James McDevitt. Buried was in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

GIRL'S ABDUCTOR PLEADS NOT GUILTY

TOWSON, Md., March 10.—Joseph M. Janer, abductor of eleven-year-old Catherine Loerch of Brooklyn, to-day pleaded not guilty in the Circuit Court of the County at Baltimore, before Judge N. C. D. Ashe and F. J. Duncan. The defendant preferred not to free a jury, and so the case was being tried without it.

WOMAN WHO WHIPPED TWO HELD IN $300

Jessie B. McLellan, aged thirty, who used a horsewhip on Llewellyn Pulsifer, whom she mistook for another man on a train coming into the South Station and later publicly whipped Attorney George A. Sweetser of No. 60 State street, was to-day held for trial in $300 bonds until next Wednesday by Judge Burke.

The accused, who surrendered at Police Station No. 2 to-day, could not furnish bail. Dressed in rich and fascinating style, she stood up in court and asked the judge not to put her under bail bonds, that she would return for trial any time he fixed. But the request could not grant her request.

Henry Edwards, an attorney, told the court that he would appear for Miss McLellan for the present in a "semi-official manner" until she had counsel.

Attorney White, law partner of Mr. Sweetser, was in court, as was Mr. Pulsifer, the innocent victim of Miss McLellan's whip cuts.

To Our Fair Competitors

You housewives who bake your own beans are our strongest competitors. So this is for you. Let us, in your own interest, point out the mistake.

We have no real rivals in ready-baked beans. People have made their comparisons, and have chosen Van Camp's.

There is no room for argument there.

But there are still many housewives who bake their own beans. The number grows less every day. But the number remaining is amply sufficient to warrant this little discussion.

You would like to avoid baking beans if there's a better way. The process requires a great deal of time, and consumes considerable fuel.

It is pleasanter to have a dozen cans in the house—fresh and savory—ready for instant serving.

But that isn't all you gain.

No home oven can make beans a digestible dish. The particles must be separated so the digestive juices can get to them. And that requires a fierce heat.

You can get enough heat to the outer beans. More than enough; you crisp them. But the beans in the center of the baking dish never get half enough.

That's why home-baked beans are regarded as heavy food. That's why they ferment and form gas.

We bake our beans in live steam—not in dry heat. Thus we apply heat enough without crisping.

We heat our ovens to 245 degrees, by super-heating steam. Then we bake in small parcels so the full heat goes through.

The result is Van Camp's beans digest. They don't ferment and form gas. You get the most of their food value.

That is utterly impossible to home baking, simply because you lack the facilities.

We bake our beans until they are mealy, yet we don't break the skins. They remain nutty and whole because we don't use dry heat.

We bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, and get a delicious blend. For those reasons, most people like Van Camp's better than home-baked beans.

Thus we give you, not only a better dish, but a dish that is better for you.

Van Camp's BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE
PORK AND BEANS

Submit a dish of your beans and a dish of Van Camp's. Then ask for a vote of your table. We are willing, if you are, to let the majority rule.

Here is Nature's choicest food—84% nutriment. You can't afford to spoil it.

Here is a dish with the food value of meat, at a third the cost of meat. Surely you want your people to like it, and to eat it often.

Here is a breakfast dish, good in croquettes served with ham.

Here is an ideal luncheon, good hot or cold. Here is a dinner salad. Think what it means to have such a dish right, and to have it always ready.

Please try Van Camp's. See what they mean to you—what they mean to those you serve. See which are most delicious, which beans digest. One test is sufficient. You will never go back to home baking.

Among the SWELLS and BELLES

By CHOLLY BACKBAY.

"SAY, Cholly," said Billy to me, as we sauntered out for our usual daily stroll, "did it ever strike you what would become of us—we bloods, don'cher know—if things were just turned about and the other people had the money and we had to do the work?"

"Kind of tough on you, old chap—that's about all I can say at present."

"Well, do you know I was thinking mighty seriously about that just the other day when I met Betty Porter on the street hustling along to give a violin lesson. There's a sample of what I mean, you know; there's a girl right in my own heart. One time she had everything that money could buy—was the petted and spoiled society belle—and when the crash came all her Vincent Club intimates and other friends exclaimed in chorus 'Why what will poor Betty do?' But the democratic and Independent Betty showed them.

"She just tilted her aristocratic little chin about twenty-five degrees higher, tucked her Stradivarius under her arm and struck out to give violin lessons—you know, she's a hummer on the violin. Gee, but can't she play! Not only that, but she started in prosaically binding books and carving picture frames to sell.

"Then you remember when Frederic Tudor, head of the Tudor family of Brookline, went under years ago—but, of course, you don't; neither do I, but I've heard other people tell about it. Well, Mrs. Tudor and her two daughters, now Mrs. James Garland and Mrs. Starling Burgess, went to their Summer place at Buzzards Bay, the house which was later sold to Grover Cleveland, and went to work raising vegetables and selling milk—and they made a go of it too," just get. Where do your manners get Betsy?

"Well, Mrs. Morily Sears is about the best—and you know her portraits and floral pictures have certainly been exhibited both here and in Europe.

"Say, isn't Lucy Sears about the richest of the Boston widows?

"Yes, guess she is. She and Helen are in Paris now, and they say they will stay abroad all Summer—probably come back to go to their Southboro estate, as usual. The stock of Young Sears's estate dealt was enough to drive them abroad for good and all."

"Mrs. Harry Converse could sell a patch. Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., could do landscape gardening, and Mrs. Kenneth Hoar too could run a millinery establishment.

"Oh, I guess most of them would get along some way, though, you know, society girls don't waste all their time and I'll wager we'd be agreeably surprised to see what they would and could do if things came to the worst.

"Well, good night, Cholly—See you at the auto show tomorrow night? Saturday night, you know; better be there. Good night."

"Then, there's Phyllis Robbins, and I know some one else who is going to have her own establishment in town. She's been one of the prettiest girls in Boston. One of those coy, petite creatures, with the prettiest little curly head of brown hair and the peachiest cameo features you ever saw—and such a voice she sings!

"Why, Way man, she's a star. Geraldine Farrar and a lot more of those prima donnas please step aside—Grace Wood couldn't hold a candle to her. She could sing for a living, and boy—and girl—that's just their bread and butter, too. Let's have her as a sporadic star!

"No, old man; she hasn't the physique for an opera star—no, she's not going to be living any day on the concert stage.

"Then, there's Margaret Sears—she's a star performer both on the violin and piano and would make a fine success to perform in public.

"Yes, she's a corking all-round sport and could teach the little sisters of the '60s a thing or two about basketball, rowing, tennis, golf or any other old thing, and liked to make money, too. She's in Call fornia now, you know, and won't return until later June. Boston's slow enough for her any time she says, but she simply couldn't stand next here. No perfection for Effie."

"Then Marion Fenno—she's down in Palm Beach now—might give lessons in how to play a cracking game of golf there but's a thing about it that she doesn't understand.

"Colvin Thorndike's a pretty swell golfer, too, 10 if he'd have giving private lessons.

"Then, there's Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake. She was Helen Prince. You know, she's a dream. Say, Cholly, she could go on any stage and make a name for herself as an actress. She's fine—one of the best dancers at the Vincent club shows for a long time, and along with that she was a wonderful hostess as an actress on the stage—Sunday night now more than ever.

"Why, I've never seen such a great hit in the amateur theatricals as she created and gave at Amy Lowell's home the night before, and they say the way she trained young Blake was a wonder. He couldn't act and he didn't want to, but she made him and she made him do it well, too. I'll tell you, she's finishes in the money, old boy.

"Well, we'll get on billboards for Mrs. Blake, the actress.

"How about the languages, Cholly? We're left there out. Now, whom shall we have, touching languages? Boston society folk are strong on the linguist question. They're always having French and Italian classes and conferences."

"Well, Mrs. Hemenway is one of our best linguists. Her accent is perfect, and her French and Italian are grand, too.

"All right, we'll have her for the languages. No, let's see—Cholly, we've left out Mrs. Bessie Evans, who is going to be married in Paris now, and they say she will stay abroad all Summer—probably come back to go to their Southboro estate, as usual. The stock of Young Sears's estate dealt was enough to drive them abroad for good and all."

"Mrs. Harry Converse could sell a patch. Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., could do landscape gardening, and Mrs. Kenneth Hoar too could run a millinery establishment.

"Oh, I guess most of them would get along some way, though, you know, society girls don't waste all their time and I'll wager we'd be agreeably surprised to see what they would and could do if things came to the worst.

"Well, good night, Cholly—See you at the auto show tomorrow night? Saturday night, you know; better be there. Good night."

Another April bride of interest to the social set here in the Hub is Miss Sadie Smith, Mrs. Lorraine Jacqueline Smith is spending a delightful time at the home wedding to Edward H. "Then, there's Phyllis Robbins, and I know some one else who is going to have her own establishment in town. She's been one of the prettiest girls in Boston. One of those coy, petite creatures, with the prettiest little curly head of brown hair and the peachiest cameo features you ever saw—and such a voice she sings!

"Why, Way man, she's a star. Geraldine Farrar and a lot more of those prima donnas please step aside—Grace Wood couldn't hold a candle to her. She could sing for a living, old boy—and girl—that's just their bread and butter, too. Let's have her as a sporadic star!

"No, old man; she hasn't the physique for an opera star—no, she's not going to be living any day on the concert stage.

"Then, there's Margaret Sears—she's a star performer both on the violin and piano and would make a fine success to perform in public.

"Yes, she's a corking all-round sport and could teach the little sisters of the '60s a thing or two about basketball, rowing, tennis, golf or any other old thing, and liked to make money, too. She's in California now, you know, and won't return until later June. Boston's slow enough for her any time she says, but she simply couldn't stand next here. No perfection for Effie."

"Then Marion Fenno—she's down in Palm Beach now—might give lessons in how to play a cracking game of golf there but's a thing about it that she doesn't understand.

ACTOR DISAPPEARS.

CHICAGO, March 10.—"Wait here, I'll be back in a moment, dear," said A. B. Francis, a New York actor, when he left his wife standing in the waiting-room of the Polk Street station. Francis has not been seen by friends since, and the police were asked to search for him.

MURIEL WHITE WON BY COUNT IN LOVE SUIT

By VANCE THOMPSON.

(Special Cable to Boston American.)

PARIS, March 10.—While admitting that his daughter, Miss Muriel White, is engaged to marry a German nobleman, Henry White, the American ambassador to France, smilingly said, when asked why the confirmation was withheld, Monday:

"You had the same wrong.

Miss White's fiance is Count Hermann Seherr Thoss (pronounced Zare Toss), of the Prussian province of Silesia, and it was at a court ball given by the Kaiser in Berlin last Christmas that Miss Muriel White first met the handsome young guard he followed her to Paris, where a discreet courtship was permitted by the ambassador.

Count Hermann is the eldest son and heir of the Count and Countess Seherr Thoss, of Bolkow, Prussian Silesia, and hereditary peers of Prussia, and owner of vast estates, coal mines and a famous town house in Berlin.

Count Hermann is a handsome, upstanding man, twenty-nine years of age and a lieutenant in the Royal Prussian Guards. He is extremely popular in English society and a close intimate friend of the Crown Prince. His personal fortune, even before he inherits the family estates, is amply large; indeed, he made it plain that there should be no marriage settlement, and Miss White goes to him without a dowry.

In Paris society it is thoroughly understood that this is a love match. The Ambassador did not ask for consent, for he heard that the young couple were certain of her own country, but Count Hermann simply stormed the fortress, would take no denial and won where so many other suitors have failed.

Miss Muriel is a beautiful girl of great social charm in Paris, as she was also in Berlin, where she was the guest of Mr. White's Ambassador so far as social functions are concerned. The date for the marriage is not yet fixed, but it will occur probably in May, when the young people will go to live in one of the family castles in Silesia. Miss White is twenty-five years of age. In addition to being heir to the family title and estates, Count Hermann will succeed to the hereditary peerage in the Prussian House of Lords.

PET DOG SAVES FIVE IN FIRE

The barking of a pet dog saved the lives of Roland M. Lincoln, a professor of science at the Bussey Institute of Harvard, his wife and four servants in a fire in the Lincoln home, a three-story granite mansion known as the Stonehedge on South street, Jamaica Plain, early to-day.

Professor Lincoln was awakened by the loud barking of his little black poodle, which was running wildly up and down the stairs and shaking his dog of the house, scratching at the doors with his paws in an effort to attract the attention of the occupants.

The cause of his animal's actions was apparent. The house was rapidly filling with smoke which came pouring up the stairways.

Professor Lincoln rallied the servants who was asleep on the second floor, rushed to the first floor and with his wife and servants and then telephoned to fire headquarters for assistance.

Mrs. Lincoln and the servants hastily gathered up what few things they could and scantily clad started for the street. By this time great volumes of smoke were rolling up through the house blinding them and making their exit difficult. They finally reached the street after they were nearly overcome. They were taken to the home in the rear of the house and clothing brought to them.

ETHEL BARRYMORE TO WED SON OF RUBBER KING COLT ON SUNDAY

Miss Ethel Barrymore.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, the most famous member of the Barrymore family of actors, will be married quietly in this city next Sunday to Russell Griswold Colt, son of Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, president of the United States Rubber Company and of the Industrial Trust Company of Providence, and several times a millionaire.

The bridegroom is a twenty-six years old and the descendant of the Colts of Hartford, Ct., his father being a nephew of Samuel Colt, the inventor of Colt's revolver.

The announcement of the coming wedding is a surprise to all except the immediate family of young Colt. His father is said to be much pleased with the match and has announced his intention of making a large settlement on his son.

Miss Barrymore is passing at the Hollis Street Theatre and soon after her marriage will leave for a western tour. She will remain on the stage, seemingly, and it may be the rest of the season, and will go to Europe for the Summer.

Since she made her first appearance on the stage, reports of Miss Barrymore's engagement have been recurrent. During her previous theatrical engagement in London she was frequently reported as being about to wed various English noblemen and later she was reported engaged in turn to Charles Frohman, son of Sir Henry, and to Harold Du Maurier, and from time to time various American Augustuses of means and leisure were named as the fortunate ones.

In July, 1905, Miss Barrymore announced in London her engagement to Captain Harry Graham, formerly an officer in the Coldstream Guards, at one time private secretary to Lord Rosebery, and a writer of satiric verse, and his book, "Misrepresentative Men," dedicated to Miss Barrymore, bore the inscription under the dedication:

"For what Augustus of means and leisure
Will ever marry the fortunate one?"

Unfortunately, Miss Barrymore announced out of happiness did not long continue for him. The engagement was to have taken place in the following Winter or Spring of 1906, but instead Miss Barrymore had changed her mind were recurrent during the following year, and continued through the Spring, and in June Miss Barrymore announced that the engagement had been broken.

Since that time Miss Mr. Colt has been very attentive to Miss Barrymore. He has passed much of his time in New York and has frequently been seen taking Miss Barrymore for motor rides. The announcement of the wedding plans is, however, a surprise to his closest friends.

"Britain will defend against attack the American coast upon the Pacific and Hawaii and the Philippines.

"Then we can congratulate at the end of five years' notice given by either party."

QUINCY, March 10.—There was a lively five minutes on Butler's Pond, at the rear of the High School, when fifteen or twenty of the scholars and W. L. Gregg, one of the submasters, were floundering about in four feet of water.

During a recess several members of the freshman class went out on the ice. Some of them went through into the water, and the cry went out that one was drowning. Mr. Gregg walked out onto the ice but he hadn't taken more than a step before his head disappeared. He grabbed the Ashboy, who was in grave danger, and then, reaching for several others, who were taking a dip had as quick as they could through broken ice edges.

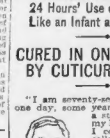
CURED IN ONE MONTH BY CUTICURA REMEDIES



"I am seventy-seven years old and one day, some years ago, I fell from a step-ladder, bruising my head. In a few days I could not walk. I called in a doctor and inside of a week eysipelas set in. The doctor had not cured me of that when I was taken with eczema from head to foot. I was sick for six months and suffered tongue could not tell. I had no sleep day or night because of that dreadful itching; when I did sleep it was from sheer exhaustion. I was one mass of irritation; it was worst in my scalp. The doctor's medicine seemed to make me worse and I was almost out of my mind. I read of Cuticura and sent my wife to the druggist, who was a member of my lodge of Odd Fellows, for a set of the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. I used them persistently for twenty-four hours. That night I slept like an infant, the first I had had in months. I was a new man in my body. I can truthfully say to this I cannot praise the Cuticura Remedies too highly. I am 84 years old, I have a very heavy head of hair which is white as silk." (Signed) Wm. Smith, R.F.D. 2, Mt. Kisco, N. AUTO CROWNED KING BY BOSTON SOCIETY AT BIG SHOW TODAY

By J. C. KERRISON.

This is Society Day at the Auto Show.

The day on which the leaders are expected to get out and see the several displays, and the indications are that it will be a red letter day in more respects than one. As the show progresses the interest and the sales materially increase and judging from the attendance during the early hours of the morning, today will take precedence over all other society days in the records of motor shows.

The wise buyer has come to select the early morning hours in which to visit the show and inspect the various models, but in the afternoon and evening the hall is so crowded that the several dealers and exhibitors get little opportunity to give to each prospective purchaser all the time and attention that they desire and that they themselves are pleased at this turn of things and the more visitors in the morning the more welcome they are.

Record Breaking Attendance.

The attendance yesterday was a record breaker. The show was complete in every detail, and a more comfortable day out for a show was never devised. The exhibitors motioned the speed and well opened, without any crowding, and the broad aisles, that sweep around the main floor, and also those in the gallery are without any sharp angles, a point that adds much to towards advancing the comfort of the visitors.

Still they are nearly wide enough to care for the throngs that crowd into the building.

When one got tired of meandering around the floor of the hall there was ample seating accommodation in the balcony of Music Hall, where one can enjoy the music and admire the decorative features.

The show does not lose any of its beauty through a daylight view; its simplicity affording a splendid, simple background, for the gay colors of the cars themselves, and these, many of which are essentially cars are painted and varnished in more colors than are to be found in the rainbow.

Last Big Show of the Year.

And yet all of these gaily colored cars are absolutely practical and the majority of them will be seen on the roads here-abouts at the conclusion of the show; for be it known this is the last big show of the year.

Every big manufacturing concern has its mechanical sharps, designers and constructors at the show, and the chief topic of conversation is the mechanical tendencies as revealed by the several exhibits.

Perhaps one of the most interesting things at the show is the way of cylinder casting is the new method of casting all four cylinders in "block" as the foreigners term it, that is to say, in one piece.

These designers show this style method of construction, the Chalmers-Detroit 30, the Stearns 45-50 and the Thomas 30. Briefly, all four cylinders, taking the Chalmers-Detroit as an example, are in a single casting, procuring lightness, compactness, and very satisfactory water jacketing. This construction is very largely used on foreign cars.

Mechanical Features.

It also permits the use of two bearing crank shafts, which can be made shorter, thicker and stronger than if the cylinders were cast singly or in pairs. As further development a year hence, at the next show, should prove interesting.

All the cars are water cooled, excepting the Waltham and the Franklin, although the Curtis makes a feature of air and water cooled.

It has always seemed absurd that in a mechanically propelled vehicle the power plant should deprive such chemical energy for the production of its electric spark for ignition purposes, but it is no surprise to say that the magneto leads, and that the high tension spark system is the favorite.

Combinations, however, of both batteries and magneto are popular among the high tension ignition jump spark devices.

In regard to the most notable speed changing devices, the selective system of course leads, the progressive system being second, planetary being third and the number of speeds ranging from two, forward and reversed between three and four, although one car, the Waltec has a five speed transmission.

New Line of Tires.

In clinches, the cone is still slightly leading, the multiple disc coming in fourth if all the other types are added together, the plurality leads, for there are expanding band clinches, contracting band clinches, expanding rings, three disc, and three cone.

There has been a sensible and notable increase in the dimensions and extension of tires used, the biggest tires in the show are 36x4 inches and sometimes 36x4½ inches, but these are only used on the very largest and most expensive cars, the popular priced cars inclining toward the use of 32, 3 1-3x4 inches or 34x4 inches.

Taking up the number of cylinders used in each car, the Cadillac is the only low price model uses one cylinder, the Autocar two, and both of these are horizontal, all the others that follow being placed vertical.

All the motors in the show are of the 4-cycle type, excepting the Thomas 45 of the 2-cycle type, and they also make the only three cylinder motor in the show

At the opening of the season I felt confident that the Buick would be a success," said Manager Sales Manager Thompson, of the Buick Motor Company, "but I was not prepared for the success that has been the fact. Never in the history of the Buick Company has there been such a demand for cars as there is at present. The factory is working overtime and the output is increased to the limit. Every car is sold as soon as it is completed, and we are behind on orders. TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, NEW YORK, March 10.—Some important new financing is being considered in connection with the New York Central and Union Pacific systems. Weird rumors are afloat regarding it, but nothing definite has come to the surface. The talk is of a bond issue of not less than $150,000,000, but perhaps of $100,000,000 more than that. It was at first rumored that Union Pacific would make this issue, because that company already has authority to issue $150,000,000 of bonds. This authority has been used, but there is all provided for and nothing new can be done in that direction.

One suggestion is that Harriman has figured out a plan to dispose of the $30,000,000 Union Pacific bonds held two years ago, his idea being to prevent their conversion. The possibility of having these bonds converted has been a very disturbing factor in the situation. They cannot be perfectly retired until 1912, but interest is doubled after the Harriman lines are understood to hold almost the entire issue, so that is the time the retirement is possible. Rumors in this connection are also of an agreement regarding the merger of the Union Pacific and the New York Central, which, possibly, will have to make a new issue of bonds when a high price was assisted for it. Nobody wants to guess at these. What the public wants is a daylight bond sale.

Investment lists compiled by the bond houses, for current circulation among their clients, contain few, if any, new features. Perhaps the most striking thing about them is the way in which the prices of the highest grade issues conform with the prices which have been quoted in previous lists. Following the general trend of the market, these bonds have been marked up until there are scarcely any of them now obtained on a basis better than 4 per cent. Most of them, in fact, run on a basis somewhat between 3.75 and 4 per cent.

Pool operators who have been promising an early dividend on Wisconsin Central have been pehoning without the new owners. An authoritative statement received from Canada discourages any purchases of Wisconsin Central common with a view to a rise in the immediate future. On the highest authority it can be said that there will be no dividend paid on this issue for two years, and perhaps not for four years. Ultimately it will be a good dividend payer because it is going into the hands of conservative managers. The pool is still active, and persons who purchase it expecting a dividend in the near future can still get out without loss. The company is able to save at least $700,000 a year in managing the property, but it must spend $5,000,000 at once putting the property into good condition.

Selling of ice can be traced directly to insiders of the company, but in view of the liquidities of real stock the issue is remarkably strong. From the action of the stock it is evident that the new bond issue has all been placed.

The weakness of Amalgamated Copper is attributed to the belief that the figures of the Copper Producers' Association, which will probably be made public to-day, will show a larger increase in stocks than was at first expected. It is also anticipated that stocks on hand increased between twenty and forty million pounds in the month of February. It is said that the fact that deliveries of copper in February were very small.

One of the largest copper producers says that buying has subsided materially and that very little copper is being taken by domestic consumers. He says that he does not look for an improvement in the copper situation until the tariff is out of the way and industrial conditions have been thoroughly adjusted.

The most important difference between the situation a month ago and now is the fact that a great many stocks have passed from weak to stronger hands, and, second, that the investment or conservative class of stocks in all lots has been reserved. This business does not appear on the tape, of course, and one knows of it only by inquiry. One day recently there were 2,500 shares done in odd lots on a stock the total transactions in which, as reported on the tape, were only 800 or 700 shares.

BOSTON STOCKS DULL AND OFF

Extreme dullness with a sagging tendency was the character of the opening considered in connection with the New York Central and Union Pacific systems. Weird rumors are afloat regarding it, but nothing definite has come to the surface. The talk is of a bond issue of not less than $150,000,000, but perhaps of $100,000,000 more than that. It was at first rumored that Union Pacific would make this issue, because that company already has authority to issue $150,000,000 of bonds. This authority has been used, but there is all provided for and nothing new can be done in that direction.

Though Arcadian eased off fractionally it is still being bought by some of the strongest interests here, as they do not decline any pronounced activity in the stock for the selling is being quietly done.

About noon the dullness increased, and on very small trading the tone of the market remained weak.

SANDY FERGUSON KNOCKS KUBIAK OUT IN FOURTH

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

JEFFRIES ADVISES PARENTS TO TEACH THEIR BOYS TO BOX

FERGUSON NOW SEEKS BATTLE WITH JOHNSON

Sandy Ferguson, the big Cuban scrapper, who put the knockout on Al. Kubiak to sleep right at the Arena's A. A., will now go after Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world.

Hughey McLean, Sandy's trainer, has the local men in the pink of condition and intends to make the most of his chances by going right after the big ones. Ferguson's managers are after a number of fights, as they are trying to match him with Al Kaufman, and have several negotiations on foot in Paris, but above all they want a crack at the "Big Smoke."

Kubiak Was Easy.

Sandy made good in impressive style and sprung a decided surprise on many of the patrons of the game who, on past performances, laid the Chelsea man down in their books as being a "dead one." It was evident from the time the men stepped into the ring that Kubiak was outclassed.

Like a lamb led to the slaughter the husky Pole fighter took an awful lacing from the rejuvinated Sandy and succumbed in the fourth round when Ferguson stunned him with a right cross on the point of the jaw.

Kubiak, game as a pebble, never knew he was beaten till Sandy's haymaker crashed him on the canvas as he was rushing his huge foe in every round, but that style of milling proved his destruction.

Sandy Played Fox.

It was largely the little trick Sandy played on his young rival at the outset which swayed the battle his way. When the men came out from their corners for the first time Kubiak in his gutteless way extended his right mitt according to custom for the final handshake before setting off the fireworks; but not so Sandy. He fired a shot out with all the force he could muster, landing flush on Kubiak's jaw and the Pole went down in a heap stunned but more surprised as he was on his feet in an instant, but before he recovered Sandy was smacking away with both hands. The Western cyclone wouldn't be put on austerely legs while Sandy was singing but waits him out, yet managed to get his reckoning again, but the damage had been done.

Immediately Sandy was plunged on from an even money choice to a 2 to 1 favorite at any odds, but no one wanted Kubiak after that stroke of diplomacy on the part of the Chelsea tosspot.

There was not much to the bout after that. Sandy was master of the situation, nearly knocking Kubiak's head off his shoulders with vicious left jabs and the one of his eyes completely closed. Bewildered by the rain of left jabbing that his face Kubiak never stopped dashing in for more and Sandy was generous with his decorating ammunition.

Could Not Avoid Sandy's Left.

It was the machine like action of Sandy's trusty left widely and well downfall of Kubiak. He was dashing his head against a stone when he drew at Sandy to better him with his powerful left, but his left swings, which rarely landed, as he couldn't get inside of Sandy's guard, were the home product.

After being jabbed almost to pieces it was not such a difficult task for Sandy to find the pathway to the jaw with his right, which he had vainly hurled against Kubiak's iron head, but when it did connected with the proper voltage and force the finish in the fourth round was the result, as Kubiak was vanquished by the short route.

The first bout of the preliminaries was between Bob Lee and Willie Williams, two husky negroes, and Williams did not have time to sell his mitts dearly, as Lee waded and out. Lee sending out but three swipings, Angus McDougall and Mike Gallagher, in the six rounds, the former getting the decision. Young Troy stepped in a mild affair of our round with Pete Le Fever.

BY ROUNDS.

Round One.

Both came out of their corners quickly to the middle of the ring, Kubiak with hand extended to greet Sandy in the usual manner, but Sandy aimed for the jaw, and Kubiak rolled over on his back. The Pole got to his feet at the count of the count, considerably stunned, to the unexpected greeting. Lee in a moment rushed into him, banging with right and left on jaw. Kubiak was staggered from the start and managed to clinch and get his bearings. He rushed on Sandy, but could not land a blow, as Sandy was too clever on the defense. Kubiak, still moving in and missing with right and left swings, got a left to the jaw and a right to the head and clinched. This started a mixup, in which Sandy's cleverness came on to good advantage. Sandy took a chance, jabbing with left and swinging right for the jaw, but missed, just grazing Kubiak's face. Ferguson's round.

Round Two.

Kubiak rushed, swinging right for jaw. Sandy blocked with left to body. A jab on the nose and Kubiak missed with right. Sandy met him in the centre of the ring wondering what to do. Kubiak rushed, but Sandy met him with a shower of lightning lefts and Kubiak missed a right swing for the jaw. Sandy then jabbed left to the body and right for the jaw, left straight, connecting with Kubiak's face as he rushed. Kubiak missed with right and was greeted with a right on the body, and Sandy tried a left to the jaw, but missed. Kubiak got in a right to the head and repeated and as the bell rang Sandy landed a left to the stomach. Ferguson's round.

Round Four.

Kubiak started away rushing and putting right to body. He ran against Sandy's left on the nose. He ran into Sandy's left at full swing, and Sandy's left to the jaw sent him to the mat. Sandy let his hands drop to his sides and Kubiak missed a left for the jaw. Kubiak rushed, and in his quixoty and intended to get to the jaw. He finally landed a right to the head. He missed Kubiak trying to find the jaw. Kubiak rushed, swinging right and left for the jaw. Sandy ducked and blocked and landed left to the jaw. Kubiak was gradually getting his bearings and Sandy was not finding him easy. As he jabbed he followed it up with a terrific right swing for the jaw. Kubiak missed, though, and the force of the blow sent Sandy to the floor. Kubiak rushed to finish him, but Sandy was up and met him with a left to the jaw that sent him down and out.

JEFFRIES MUST FIGHT FOR TITLE, SAYS JOHNSON

VICTORIA, B. C., March 10.—Accompanied by his white wife, Jack Johnson left here to-day for the East and is due in Chicago Saturday. Champion says he is willing to meet Jeff or any one else for the title.

"It rires me to hear this talk about Jeffries claiming the championship. Why, when a Mayor leaves office he's an ex-Mayor, isn't he?

"When a champion leaves the ring he's an ex-champion. Well, if Jeffries wants to try and get the championship back I'm willing to take him on.

"I want a winner and a loser's end. I don't care which it is on and de or 75 and 25, but there's got to be a winner and a loser's end. That's how I put Burns.

Sam Fitzpatrick, when asked about his split with Johnson, said it had begun soon after they left Sydney.

"Johnson was a different man before the fight," he said. "He would stand out on the land then, but he is a hard man to handle now. We decided to split soon after the Makara left."

May Fight Ketchel.

It is doubtful, according to the arrangements made by Johnson, whether any fight could be put on with Jeffries, Ketchel or any other man within six months. While his plans are not absolute, he has son hinted at willingness to change them if anything big should be lined up for a match with Ketchel.

Johnson intends to devote several months to a theatrical engagement, having signed with a syndicate in England for the London halls, and after an English tour pay a visit to France and Germany.

Johnson will leave the Makura at Vancouver and proceed to-morrow morning to Chicago, arriving there Saturday. He will continue his journey to Boston on Monday, arriving at his Texas home Wednesday.

Parade Is Planned.

When his attention was drawn to the Galveston dispatch announcing the formation of committees to arrange a parade at Galveston, his eyes sparkled and he showed his gold-tipped teeth with a grin, saying:

"Tell them I'll be there."

Asked whether he intended to arrange a match with Ketchel, he said everything depends on the offers. He was doubtful though, he said, if any fight could be arranged until after his theatrical tour.

Johnson was much interested in Jeffries' condition.

Johnson was asked regarding the story printed in New York by George Bernard, an Australian sporting man, that before the fight with Sydney Johnson and his manager, Fitzpatrick, received an offer of $12,000 in cash to throw the fight to Burns, but turned the proposition down. The colored champion said:

Talks of Lay Down Offer.

"I don't think that's right. I don't know what they might have wanted to do, but you see they were afraid to come near me, and—well, I don't think that's right.

"Did you go into the Melbourne hospital as a charity patient? Johnson was asked.

"Well, it was this way. I had some trouble with my neck, and kind of thought the Melbourne hospital the best place to go; but I didn't go there as a charity patient. Why, I drove there in my motor car.

"Did you pay for the treatment?"

"Why, no; it was a free hospital, wasn't it, and anyhow I felt free to go there, for wasn't I paying an income tax on the 22[illegible] was getting for my theatrical work? Tommy Burns was getting more, but he had moving pictures. He was getting $250.

"I kind of thought the income tax was sufficient to pay for what I got at the hospital. I offered to pay the doctor, however, but wouldn't take the money. Then wanted to send him some silk socks, but he wouldn't take them. I told him that men in American worth millions went to public hospitals, but he didn't seem to understand.

"Australia has no reason to complain about me, though. I have paid more income tax all the time, and had a good deal of money for various charities while in Sydney. Yes, there was some discussion by the hospital people and something got into the papers."

Johnson in a Concert.

On the way from Australia, Johnson took part in two concerts on board and was warmly applauded. He played selections on the bass viol and often at night when the rolling of the steamer was not too much to make him indisposed—for Johnson admits that the sea got the decision over him a couple of times—he was heard strumming on his violin. He admitted that he had intended giving some selections at church entertainments in Australia.

"I am a church man, belong to the Methodist church, but they did not seem to have room for a colored man in the Methodist churches of that 'White' country.

"They are good sports, though. They treated me fine while I was on my kick over the jaw. But on the surface, it seemed to think more of Tommy Burns after I had kicked him—giving him such a licking as nobody ever had—than they did of me, and the champion.

"That was a funny story about me finding a message in the income tax on 'The Pilgrim's Progress,' but on the level, I do read Shakespeare."

WHY BOXERS GO TO PARIS

That there is some easy money awaiting our fighters in Paris there can be no doubt. When men of the caliber of Mc Vey and Jeanette can get $2,000 and expenses each for an exhibition, that is really all Gunboat Smith got in Paris are—why, it looks like a fairly soft spot.

The meetings are sanctioned by the A. I. N. A., and Frank McGrath, official handicapper for the A. A. U., will have charge of the handicapping in these events. The first call for events will be at 7:30 when the preliminary card will be pulled off.

Following is a list of the events:

Twenty-yard dash, scratch event; running high jump, handicap, limited to those who have not won first or second place; handicap limit 20 years (pursuit race); putting 12-lb. shot, handicap limit 10 feet; three standing broad jumps, handicap limit four feet; potato race, scratch event; 100-yard dash, yards apart to be put in runs, the finish will be a tape on a 10-yard mark; fifty-yard relay race, four men to enter, four men to compete, each man to run 200 yards.

Boy Scouts will be the weight the feather-weight championship should be sought at, which is responded to the weight. Did Driscoll win the title by losing Attell at 123 pounds.

Decide.

It is 122 pounds ringside in America, 126 pounds in England. Driscoll is featherweight champion of England only.

Want No Nation of Weaklings, Big Fellow Declares

JEFF SAYS TEACH BOYS TO BOX

Teach your boys to box, is James J. Jeffries's advice to parents in his article of interest I presented below. He tells girls how they may become strong and healthy.

By JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

By permission of William Morris, Inc. Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner.

A nation that has adopted pugilism as a national sport will never become a nation of weaklings.

Boxing helps a man both physically and morally. My advice to every father, and mother, too, in the country is this:

"Teach your boy to box. You will never regret it, and he will grow up to be a better man in every way."

"But how am I going to teach my boy to box?" many will doubtless ask. "He doesn't like being rough, and I'm afraid he'll be hurt."

That's all nonsense. Take him and your neighbor's boy out behind the barn and let them sling each other. Probably may get out of the fray with a cut lip or a bloody nose or may be, even a blackened eye.

But what does that matter? These things soon heal. In a few days the hurt will be forgotten, and Johnny and Jimmy are anxious to go at it again. You don't want anyone to think that I mean that you should box before you get to the world for our young Americans, but I don't think you will see any objection to it. What I want to impress upon my readers is that a knowledge of the manly art is an asset to any boy, no matter what calling he chooses.

Let me take your own city as an example. It is my positive belief that at least 60 per cent. of you should be safe in saying 75 per cent. of the sickness in this city could be avoided by plenty of fresh air and exercise.

The ordinary boy who goes to business gets up at, let's say, 7 o'clock in the morning. He is due at his office downtown at 8. That means that he has about half an hour to wash, dress eat and get started. He bolts down his breakfast, dashes to the nearest subway or elevated station and on the train packs in dozens of others in an ill-ventilated, hot, crowded car.

Bolts His Lunch.

All during the morning he is locked up in a stuffy office. At noon he goes out for lunch. In most cases he makes for the nearest restaurant, bolts down his food and rushes back again to his office. I have noticed that many try to hold their breath for fear of getting some fresh air into their lungs.

The afternoon goes the same as the morning did. At 5 or 6 o'clock he is off for the day. He makes a wild dash for the car again, seeks his seat over the heads of others over his newspaper on the trip uptown.

Dinner is probably ready when he gets home. That is quickly over, and he rushes to the nearest pool room, or, I am sorry to say, sometimes to a convenient saloon where he spends the evening.

What chance has a boy like that? Before he is twenty-one he will be weak and sickly. Weekly visits to the doctor will follow, he will ruin his stomach with medicine, and then wonder why he doesn't get well.

Fear Fresh Air.

The men, women and girls are the same way. They seem to have a desperate horror of fresh air and exercise, and that's why there's so much sickness and so many doctor's bills.

Let that boy get up an hour or so earlier in the morning. That will give him plenty of time to eat his breakfast properly and then let him walk to his office.

Walking is the greatest tonic there is in the world. No one can get too much of it.

"Oh, I live four or five miles from the office, and I'd be all tired out when I got to the office." That's the general complaint, but it's not so. Just try it some time, and see if I'm not right. You may feel a little stiff the first day or so, but you'll soon get over that and in a short time you'll be surprised.

If you must ride, don't rush into a stuffy car. Stand on the platform and insists on the windows being opened when you reach your office open all of the windows and leave them open all day.

Sleep with your window open at night. If you have plenty of bed clothes, ill effects can follow, even in the coldest weather, and you will be surprised at the glow you feel in the morning.

It is the horror of exercise and fresh air that is the curse of everything city. It's the same all over the country, and it's just that thing that keeps the hospitals filled.

Take your country boy or girl. They are more robust, hale and no stuffy ears. Their food is plain, and they are compelled to walk if they want to get anywhere.

We don't want to be a nation of weaklings, but that's what we're coming to, and fast, too. Let us wake up and begin to-day.

Walk to your office, get all the fresh air you can get in the day, and in a short time you'll be thanking me for my good advice.

John L. Sullivan's Column

Ever since the news was dashed out from New York that a move would be made to revise and regulate the weights and classes in the boxing ring the whole country has begun to take a more active interest in proceedings. The results will be watched with a feeling that some good may develop from the event.

When the committee of boxing experts meet there they will have a serious matter before them to sift the exhibitions and conditions in order to find the proper remedy for the scrappings that have been the cause of many good matches falling through, and they will need to go carefully or more juggling with the present set of laws of the ring will do more harm than good.

Anything that will do away with the constant bickerings and disputes which have been the cause of so many fights and help their own cause at the expense of the other fellow means my hearty approval.

It is only unseeming to the public to hear the long entangled disagreements which have been allowed to go on without limit.

It isn't a bad idea to let the brains trust of boxing offer suggestions in the matter of assigning weights in the different classes. There are the practical workers, but I am greatly mistaken if the majority of them are not adhering to rules and set limits as adopted in America.

The English code of allowing fighters weighing in as early as 9 o'clock in the morning for bouts to come off in the afternoon is a wide divergence from the original ring methods.

As a start I'd like the members who will discuss the framing of a new set of ring laws to go over a lot of trouble if they will demand that ringside weight shall rule in all cases to decide championship matches, a thing which has always been accepted.

Just because certain fighters have sought to stretch the matter of weight by asking for an early weighing in is no reason for changing a standard which is widely recognized.

If it is found necessary to establish other classes for the new crop of ring sters, especially for the little fellows, it may be the proper thing, but the old standards make a good foundation on which to grope any innovations by.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Boy Scouts tell me the weight the feather-weight championship should be sought at, which is responded to the weight. Did Driscoll win the title by losing Attell at 123 pounds.

Decide.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Ed Parks is now in charge of Bill Papke's affairs and there is little doubt but that a return of the Boat with Jim Flynn, which will be held March 17. It might be one of the big general name in Andrew Carnegieism and that the duke of Manchester will see any objection to the ring title being changed.

Jack Johnson and Leslie Stone station in Chicago holds the distinction of being the only man in the world who has ever put Jack Johnson to the count. Young Stone put the big boxer down for the count while Jeff carried behind to say good by to a friend, but the latter got up and finished Johnson with a right to the jaw.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian fight promoter has offered Hal Nelson a $10,000 guarantee for a bout in March. Is Nelson going to Australia or has Hugh signed up with Johnny Coulon to meet some one possibly Tim Hurley, Jack Britton or Young Zulu Prince in May. But all take on a few bouts before going to the coast.

Johnny Frayne and Bert Keyes, the two hard luck featherweights, have been matched for a 10-round go at the Marathon Athletic Club of Brooklyn on March 14. Frayne has not been in the ring for a match with the winner of a week later.

The match between Frankie Neil and Abe Attell at New Orleans this month will not likely take place, as the latter is in the city and will not be in the Southern city until after the date set for the bout. Neil is willing to meet Attell at 122 pounds, but wants a percentage.

Tommy Burns has invested heavily in the theatrical business in Australia, and with his brother, named Keating, will conduct a chain of moving picture theatres in that country.

In direct contrast to last winter the boxing clubs are all making money and several are re-opening the Starrow Club in New York. Never before in the history of the game has boxing been on such a prosperous. Sixteen clubs are enjoying good profits in the metropolis, and the total receipts for the month is not. The future of the game's success seems to be assured, and it is safe to say that the losers are above reproach.

Packey McFarland was a star featherweight when the present top notchers were in rompers, has been matched to box Jack Britton at 147 pounds for a ten-round bout.

Fred Middleton, matchmaker for the West Side Athletic Club of New Orleans, has signed Featherweight Champion Battling Nelson an effort to get him to box Johnny Kilbane for the championship at 122 pounds. Nelson is willing to meet Kilbane at 122 pounds, but wants a percentage.

FUTURITIES AID TO TURF

New England has made rapid strides in the production of extreme speed of late years, and the success that has come to many breeders has been the cause of interesting new men in the business, and each has induced many who were formerly in the breeding business, but who for one reason or another had dropped out of it, to reenter the breeding ranks. This is particularly true of the small breeders and the professional men who own one or two well-bred mares.

Many of these who own mares that have been used in the matinee races have bred them to some well-bred stallion and still watch the produce of the union with great interest. Of course, they will not sell broad futurity prospects, but they will all hope to do so.

Much of that has been made by New England bred youngsters and aged horses during the past few years is pretty well done away with the idea that northern breeders cannot compete in the production of early speed with those of Kentucky or California.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

RED SOX PLAYERS SORE FROM EFFECTS OF GAME

By BERT MITCHELL.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 10.—The boys are a little sore again today, but this is to be expected. The game yesterday between the Regulars and the Yannigans was played in a cold wind and the thermometer registered 45°. When it is considered the last time the boys worked in Farenheit's family registered close to 80 degrees in the shade, there was some change in the weather.

Not only was the weather colder, but the two-day layoff stiffened up the arms of the athletes, so that today they are in a measure have to begin all over again. But first there is nothing so serious. They are doing a heap of good and they will need to take conditions as they find them. They all say they never felt so good after a cold week's work before the rain and the cold came along. Another day or two and they will be right again.

When the Yanigans took to the mound the Yannigans there was lots of fun. In spite of the fact that all the pitchers except the battery men played in sweaters and coats, they were all lined up in baseball togs and the jibes and small talk they threw at each other would not sound well in a sewing circle.

They chattered like monkeys. There was a lot of clean hitting all through the game. The pitchers got there with some straight balls. Manager Lake barring an error. The outright score was good enough for nearly every man on both teams and the outfielders got enough running exercise to last them for the day and a little more.

Ryan Was Easy.

Ryan, who was supposed to be ready for the opening of the championship season, started for the Regulars, but Captain Niles of the Yannigans got him in the second inning, and for a while it looked as though the third man would never be put out.

One or two questionable decisions on the part of Dr. Green, the umpire, also prolonged the season. After pitching two innings Ryan gave way to Burchell, who held the youngsters in a corner. Then Chech pitched the last round for the Regulars and disposed of the Yannigans without a run. Spencer caught half the game for the Regulars, and Bill Carrigan the other half. Spencer was right there with the batting work, but his throwing was rather short in every attempt. There is no desire to criticise the playing of any man, but simply to remove the impression that it is foolish to make comparisons, beside the day was cold and you cannot call that a game a fair test of baseball.

Elmer Steele, following Wycoff, pitched for the Yannigans, while Madden and Donahue did the catching. Of the regular players that were seen in action for the first time, Harry Hooper made the best impression. He stung the ball in good style, ran the bases with the swiftness of a greyhound and caught a couple of good flies.

Wood and Jake Stahl got in home runs, and was responsible for three errors and doubles. Many of the hits that have gone for safeties were on the ringiou avenue grounds, but the outfielders is swift and smooth and the ball ally slowed up the minute it struck mud.

French Did Well.

Little Charlie French played a fine game second for the Yannigans and Arellanes a right in there third. The latter is new to all around ball player. Joe Wood made a great catch of a liner in right field, while Bull Durham got in the way of the ball left with one hand.

At the season of the year the two games are evenly matched, but later it is expected that the Regulars will have a shade from the youngsters. All the members of the Red Sox squad are in good shape at this time, except Thomey and Morgan. Jack Thomas and about the only member who is not in fine condition, but did not go out to the park. Morgan, for some reason known to himself but not known to his manager, did not get out for exercise, nor did he take the trouble to call Manager Lake, permission to stay behind. The chances are that Morgan will be in the neighborhood of Mr. Morgan before calling down that he will not secure the contract. Almost forgot to say the Regulars won the game, 10 to 7, but science do not amount to much just now.

The Score.

Notes of the Training Camp.

Dr. Green had to start all over again on the umpiring of the games. That early practice yesterday caused some trouble with the umps.

There are several questions Doc Gessler will be asked before the season is over. Among them is—Why did you happen to be in Washington on the inauguration day when you had such important business in Indianapolis?

The Regulars started off well with a good double play in their first game.

Manager Lake is happy once more. With Speer in his hands, he has a fair force with all the outfield.

Joe Wood makes a pretty sweet outfielder. He is a natural born ball player.

George Tebeau, who was employed him last year, predicts that in a year or two Wood will be the pitcher in the American League.

Charlie Chech anxious to pitch for the Yannigans, but Lake made also go in. Ed Burchell didn't want to take a chance in the cold weather with the arm he hopes to pitch the opening game at Philadelphia.

There is a roller skating rink here and all the players go to it every night.

A exposure out through twenty miles from here on Monday night. The fish is reported as close as the Boston players desire to get to one of those things.

CUTLER IN FINE FORM

At the Hub Billiard Rooms Albert Cutler won both games with the same average, making his 100 points each time in nine innings. In the 18.2 balk line game with Carlson 100 to 88, in the evening he won from Campbell, 100 to 87. Cutler's high runs in the games were 134 and 136, both in the class of amateur tournament Make best balls, 150 to 125.

OPERATION FOR HARRY PULLIAM

ATLANTIC, Ga., March 10.—President Harry Pulliam of the National Baseball League, now in this city, will undergo an operation on the eyes in April. He will return to Louisville for the operation, but will rest here till the first of the month. President Pulliam discovered that a large part of his nervous trouble was due to the condition of his eyes and he is now having glasses made to correct his vision.

He expects to take the reins of the league in hand by April 20 and has called a meeting of the umpires on April 12, but will avoid written instructions.

WHISKEY FOR COLDS

The increased use of whiskey for colds is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is wonderfully effective:

Mix two ounces of Arcadian rye with eight ounces of good whiskey and add one-half ounce of Concentrated pine compound. Take a teaspoonful or a tablespoonful every four hours.

Concentrated pine compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it, as well as the other ingredients, can be had from any good druggist.

Concentrated pine is a wonderful pine product refined for medical use and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a tin screw-top case, which is airtight to retain all the original strength of the fluid, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

CUE VETERAN BACK IN GAME

Moses Yatter, the old-time billiard champion and the oldest billiard player in New England, has returned to the game and is now playing in the Hub Billiard Rooms, and if the recent runs he has made can be taken as a criterion he is proving that a player who made him a champion years ago.

Playing on an 18.2 balk line he made runs of 60 and 80, with an average of 20. In a 500-point game, against Wyckoff, the 400-point game his best run was 104. On March 22, at the Hub Billiard Rooms, party, will leave the city to attend the billiard tournament in New York city. He expects to be gone a week.

DAHLEN SHOWS FAST IN FIRST SPRING WORK

By BILL ROSS.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 10.—Not a Dove in baseball list today, except George Pierce, the Southpaw switching artist, and his shoulder is coming around the vigorous work of the first two days. Trainer Cary expected to issue a call for starting pitchers' pastimes, but the forger it? treating most his been and will be next week.

There is no disposition on the part of a single member of the team to shirk.

Manager Dahlen explains the "Big Mike" theory. He says "You've got to be lame and sore before you can get into condition, and the sooner you hate it over with, the better."

To-day the team is discussing the great contest yesterday, when Dahlen, Cook, Crackers and the High Bells, George Krakaus' nine trimmed the Augusta baseball colorie 2 to 1, and it was a game worth seeing.

Just to show how fast the pace was, it may be stated that six full innings were played in the forty-eight minutes. Manager Bowerman had intended to captain one team, but he knew Hoyt Heilman was a dandy, so he let Heilman captain the other. Dahlen decided there would be more sport if he let the young cavalier choose his men, and he did the bosses.

Then Bill Dahlen had been working at his job, but when he heard that a game was on called for a spell at a batter and he could get his baggage in the room, and his field togs on, and on. He showed up at Warren Park in war panoply with the first arrivals, almost of the boys had been handling the ball some or less before Dahlen landed in Augusta, but Bill had been "at leisure," and the others had been working hard.

War William handled that ball, made everybody open their eyes, whether on the field, in grand stand, or bleachers.

Ty Cobb in Dove Uniform.

Ty Cobb was in Boston yesterday, the second big league one day, he ever wore, and was covering first base during preliminary practice. Later he sailed into sack for his territory and the way he killed liniges and slanted the ball across the diamond to the Georgia wonder, made all players in the park take off their hats to notice.

The High Balls took the lead at the wire and kept it to the stretch. Charley Starr opened the fete by sending the ball to the bone of the brain and when it recovered consciousness found that Starr had stolen and had left a trail of torn grass behind it. Starr was safe at first, but tried to steal second and Simon Jones nailed him at the second station. Beck to Thomas. Then Dahlen hit the ball a mile and a half towards third and Ferguson's throw was too low for elongated Lewis Thomas, who contrived to second and scored on Donohue's safe one to left garden. Donohue managed to score on McCarthy's fine drive, but was thrown out at the plate from left field, by Vive Lindaman.

Crackers Almost Score.

The Graham Crackers did not get a run, but the pickings were mighty scarce, although they came near scoring in the fifth inning. Lindaman flied out to Starr to the last sack on Graham's single. But Starr handling by Peters took the ball for a smash. Thomas got nipped Chappelle at the plate and gave Every Dahlen a chance to throw out the Altoona kid at first. There was some small in this play, however.

Nineteen men have so far reported. Everyone of them was in the game except George Pierce, on account of his lame shoulder. He stayed on the coaching line, and worked for both teams. Jimmy Ball played first base as though raked there for baseball. He gathered in the ones and low ones like a real sack artist. The way he worked in double plays was worth real money. Jim was also a game loser.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Manager Lake said that the tonight game will last nine innings.

A Milwaukee writer says that Joe Cantillon will be the manager of the Washington team this year, and that Clark Griffith will be given charge of the Cincinnati team. Mike Kelley will probably go to the Boston Americans. Another report has it that Fred Mitchell, another club to be shifted.

Manager Lake is eager to get on the road this season as the Yannigans and several others are willing to go.

Another effort is being turned in the American League direction to get Ed Walsh. Reports have leaked out to the effect that the magnates have offered the racing genius and effective purchase of players outright.

Before Ryan started to bust, John McGraw is working along modern lines. The days when Mike Donlin and Turkey Mike Mitchell were baseball are long past. The duties are heavier each year.

Ryan is a good pitcher in mid season, and "Homesick" Reese says that the lion wing is now getting busy.

Cincinnati fans are no fickled with Griffith's prospects that they have already begun that Jake will finish in the first division.

Baltimore goes south all through the South this week. His scores will have the call, but they are not going to be the only ones that will get back to the big league.

Hughie Jennings believes in working his men to the limit. He will engage two teams each day, and has arranged for four double-headers before the season opens.

Close friends of Comiskey figure that the 1909 season will be the last for the old boss of the Chicago team, as he is said to be planning to retire to California.

Now baseball magnates have been a steal from millionaires. Years ago Millionaire Corey took a baseball team to Europe, and now Frank Farrell has a chance to get back to the old country. Manager Hughe to let off and pitch a few games. If he does get back to the old country, his job was gone.

Manager Lake still thinks Fernando Reisdich can come back and be as good as he ever was. Reisdich himself has his doubts, but he is willing to give baseball another try again.

Manager Chance is authority for the statement that he will never go back to the minor leagues. That's what he says.

In view of the struggle held he worked on the Sunday before Ball, he takes it that the Governor of Indiana is not what might technically be termed a rabid fan.

John Gaskill, who was with the Boston American team two years ago, will play on the Pacific coast this coming season.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

Frank Graves, who is manager of Lyons & Pooli of the Somerset alleys, has not received any challenges up to the present date, Lyons and Pooli having the whole month open.

Andy Amstrong of the Wilder Club has already begun his training for the tournament to be held at the Somerset Alleys in May. He may be seen bowling Hollister at 2 p. m. daily, walking to Dedham every day, a distance of twenty-five miles.

At the Somerset alleys the other day Lyons 111, Haven 128, Donovan 130, which is 369, was the best they rolled against the Lyons & Pooli team. These teams of three men on each side, always provide interesting play.

Dick Johnes of the North Shore League is certainly making some of the best scores that are to be taken notice of.

Charles Foster of the Furniture League rolled 114-122-115, a total of 351, against Skip Sadler of the Somerset, while Sadler had 114-122-115.

It is about time that Holmes again came out with a challenge to roll Dedick Paul Pedrick. The wise ones say Holmes had better keep away.

Harry Cole of the Imperial team in the City League is gaining every week on Louis and Pedrick. Cole's average is 101.

From now until about three weeks all the big bowlers will be busy at Somerset Alleys, Boston, men, where the prize money amounts to $1250.

Dick Reese and Leahy, Dedham stars, are tied, with the high string of 147.

"Doc" Smith and aloof several times in the Carruth game, "Doc" being it." This is several times more than he had rolled in a game before.

Stone, the Waltham savage pin-smasher, is expected to be in Boston for the tournament. The level, he says, is the best he has ever seen for the time the pins are set, and, but, what's more, he says, the Somerset alleys are the best in Boston. In many times it is better to keep the truth, so many of the fans will think the news can be bricked to them gently.

John Golden can tell when the pins are on the spots. With this to his credit it is too bad he forgot to tip the job. Some good man did, but the song is when they resign. Be sane and cause the Song deadwood, even if it is with a jolt in the jaw.

"Chic" Sigua makes a topping good referee, but he really ought to be a bit fussier when he goes to keep in the middle of the string. Three pins to a side is man enough to ring "Bing, Bang, Bing," with the rubble left out.

Cris Collins, the Lynn expert, has recently been off form. For quite a while he was marching along with the fastest in the City League.

THE ISLAND OF REGENERATION

By Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady.

If you have not begun this wonderful work of fiction yet, you can start at the beginning to-day with the synopsis of the first chapters.

CHAPTER III.—(Continued)

She had in her hand the sailor's knife, with the blade open. She could see that there was blood on it. It was the prisoner might be. Indeed, she approached him with a certain terror, accounted for partly by the situation and partly on the fact that in making this change in her garments she had, as it were, cut herself off from civilization and brought herself in some degree at least nearer his original level.

But she could not leave him there all night. Summoning her courage with both hands and with a bold front before him, she advanced to the tree and smiled the rope from the trunk and untied it from the neck as well. He stood silent, unresisting through it all, a rather pitiful figure she thought at first, until he was freed from the degrading halter.

Then she waited in intense and eager curiosity as to what he should do next. The first idea he had entered into his soul. He had been mastered by force. He could understand it. He was the subjected. He turned and walked away from her, his head bowed, staring after him. It was the first time he had with-drawn from her sight. She sighed and then with a bold front before him, she advanced to the tree and smiled the rope from the trunk and untied it from the neck as well. He stood silent, unresisting through it all, a rather pitiful figure she thought at first, until he was freed from the degrading halter.

Then she waited in intense and eager curiosity as to what he should do next. The first idea he had entered into his soul. He had been mastered by force. He could understand it. He was the subjected. He turned and walked away from her, his head bowed, staring after him. It was the first time he had with-drawn from her sight. She sighed and then stopped, stooped, threw down the shovel and followed him.

She had got in the habit of speaking to him as if he understood, so she pointed to the shovel and said suddenly:

"Pick it up and go on."

He made no immediate motions to him if her language was not.

She repeated the order, but she kept him to it, a fast vastly greater than she had expected until the interior of the hunt, which was a small ship's boat, a dinghy, had been entirely explored to her inspection revealed nothing.

Then she looked at him in an excellent state of preservation. There were even a few pairs of shoes in the locker. If she could have dug it out of the sand entirely was fresh water could have launched and used it. But such a task was utterly beyond her.

She sadly broke the rotting lines with which the oars were secured and took them out. Then she found the thwarts in the same way. She was about to turn away when her eyes caught the name of the boat, and numbers carried the names of the ships to which they belonged on their bows or across their sterns.

Charnock an American!

Here she did make a discovery, for although the name was effaced and disappeared by the action of the sand, she could still make them out. After some study she decided that the name of the boat, or of the ship to which it belonged, was Charnock. She had been mastered by force, he

Stages of Love---First, Love at Six

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THEY were at a party. Such a beautiful party, with games and bon-bons and a birthday cake with six candles.

She was four and he was six, and he was jealous, oh, so desperately, heart-brokenly jealous. For she, I regret to say, was a coquette. A coquette of the demure type, and that is the type that, from the cradle to the grave, creates the saddest havoc in the heart market. The older people at the party watched the baby comedy with amusement. But there was nothing amusing in it to the little boy lover. To him it was tragedy, for though love in embryo, it was, nevertheless, very real love.

Perhaps you are old and worldly wise and don't believe in love at six.

How Was It When You Were Six?

When you were a tiny maid did you never make eyes at the little boy next door, and did you not learn that his eyes were blue and that he had a way with him? When the party began Master Six-Years-Old was heart whole, with a large and manly contempt for girls. Had he not two sisters, and what on earth were they good for except to play dolls and cry when you pulled their hair? He would play with his boy guests, thank you, and let his sisters take care of the girls.

And then it happened.

His mother came into the room leading by the hand an angel, just simply an angel in white with blue ribbons, and she told him to shake hands with the angel, and low and behold he was vanquished and his heart thumped and tumped and behaved in the most deliciously extraordinary manner.

And the angel, that shameless young coquette, what did she do but cast down her brown eyes and slip a tiny, slender, dimpled hand into his and sidle up against him with a low spoken "I like you! Do you like me?"

"Do you like me?"

Outrageous coquetry! Of course it was, but from the moment those low spoken words left her lips he was lost and he knew it. For the next two hours he vowed her in tensely with all the forces at his command. He gave her his dearest treasure---a very much damaged skeleton of a sea horse; he pressed upon extremely dingy candy upon her, and he showed off; oh, how he did show off!

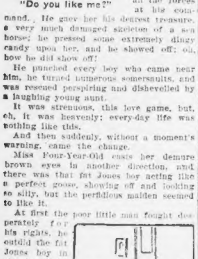
He punched every boy who came near him, he turned numerous somersaults, and was rescued perspiring and dishevelled by a laughing young aunt.

It was strenuous, this love game, but, eh, it was heavenly; every-day life was nothing like this.

And then suddenly, without a moment's warning, came the change.

Miss Four-Year-Old casts her demure brown eyes in another direction, and there was that fat Jones boy acting like a perfect goose, showing off and looking so silly, but the perfidious maiden seemed to like it.

At first the poor little man fought desperately for his rights, but outdid the fat Jones boy in showing off, he laid more gifts at the feet of the ungrateful one, but to no purpose. She never even gi'n a nod his way. At six years old it is hard for a hero to wear a broken heart in sight of his beloved, and to wear a broken heart in silence. So he buried his yellow head in mummy's knees and wept tempestuously and uncouthly. The party was spoiled for him.



Sat in gloomy dignity.

Later, when consoling about love and wrecking and the uncertainties of her own sex, as presently whispered in his ear.

The Way of All Women

A few minutes later he sat in gloomy dignity on the sofa and beside him sat a fluffy young person in pink. Of course he did not care for her, but what man could stand the sight of that faithless one in white and blue and the fat Jones boy? Oh he responded just a little bit to the overtures of Miss Fluffy Ruffles.

And then what do you think that graceless person in white and blue did? She turned her back on the fat Jones boy and, clambering upon the sofa, deliberately seated herself between her deserted swain and the lady in pink. I suppose he should have been haughty and indifferent, but he was only glad. At six heartaches are soon mended and the rest of the afternoon was one long, blissful whirlpool of delight. He loved and was loved. What more had life to offer?

That night when his mother beat over his curly head a last tender petting she found one sturdy little boy tightly closed.

"You blessed baby!" she murmured, as she gently unfolded the pink fingers. "For what do you suppose dropped from the relaxed hands? A motto on which was engraved the words, "If you love me as I love you, no knife can cut our love in two." And that is the way you love at six---decorously, smugly and primly, but yet with a faint of the possibles and hearts throbs that come with the later stages, for love is love whether it comes at six or at sixty.

Mirandy on Being Good by Proxy

By Dorothy Dix

I'SE JUST BORROWED A LOVELY PAIR OF WINGS, AN' I'D LIKE DE LENT OF DAT SCRUMPTIOUS HALO FOR A COUPLE OF MONTHS
BORROWED
MERLE JOHNSON

"Dis is de time when folks' thoughts turn to charity dat dey tries to hold up somebody else into givin'"

"I USED to wonder," said Mirandy, "why folks called de forty days of fastin' Lent, but now I knows. Dey calls hit Lent because so many folks takes advyantage of de occasion to try to borrow enough good works to save deir souls, an' kind of offset de meanness dat dey's done durin' de balance of de year.

"Yassum! If you has got any spare generosity an' sympathy for de po', you shorely ain't got no trouble in keepin' hit lent out dis time of de year.

"Dere ain't a day when dere ain't somebody whose heart is jest tore out of 'em by de sufferin's of de widders, an' de orphans, or de blind, or de crippled, or de helpless, dat ain't a-ringin' my do' bell a-askin' me to buy tickets for de benefit for de Horspital for Sick Cats, or to put my name to de subscription list for Superannuated Mutts.

"Yassum! Dis shorely is de time of de year when folks' thoughts turn towards charity dat dey tries to hold up somebody else into givin', whilst dey gits de credit for hit wid de Lawd.

"Now yesterday Sis Tempy, what is a woman dat is married to a forehanded man an' dat has got money in de bank, come to see me, an' she set down, an' as soon as we had passed de time of day, she says:

"'Sis Mirandy,' says she, 'dis is a time when our hearts ought to be open to de cry of de po' an' sufferin'.'

"'Amen,' spoms I. 'Dat am de true word, Sis Tempy.'

"'Sis Mirandy,' she goes on, 'I is had my attention called to a pitiful case of destitution right at my back do', where a low flung husband is deserted his sick wife, an' six little children. Dey is cryin' wid de cold, an' for somethin' to eat; an' feels as how I is a charitable Christian woman I felt hit my duty to help 'em, so I just put on my bonnet an' started out to raise some money, an' clothes, an' victles for 'em.'

"An' knowin' as how you is a woman dat was full of good works, I thought dat you would like to be a humble instrument of grace in relievin' deir wants.'

"'To be sure, to be sure, I'll rastle around an' find some of my children's old clothes for 'em, an' divide my dinner wid 'em,' I spoms, 'but you better tell me, Sis Tempy, what you give 'em, so dat I won't send 'em the same thing; for I makes no doubt but what you has done made you a list, an' filled their stomachs, whilst you is gone on your mission of mercy to 'em.'

"'Well,' spoms Sis Tempy, a-rarin' back in her cheer an' lookin' down at de bugles on her silk frock, 'I ain't to say just exactly give 'em anything, myself, except my time a collectin' things for 'em. Dat's my talent, Sis Mirandy, an' I don't keep it hid in a napkin, as de good Lawd says.

"'I'se a great collector, an' you know deir horn, but I'se got de name of bein 'de Lady Bountiful, an' hit's a comfortin' thought to me dat I is makin' my callin' an' election shore by my good works.'

"'Pen Sis Tempy tell me all over again about dem po' little chillen dat was a-shiverin' for clothes, an a-cryin' for bread, an' I gits up an' gives her about twice what I can spare, an' she goes on her way, a ministerin' angel dat don't never put her hand down in her own pocket.

"'Nawm, she don't! Sis Tempy is a woman dat is full of good works dat somebody else does, an' she gits de credit for. Lokwise, folks is always a prognosticatin' about her bein' so charitable, an' yet her charity begins at home, an' ends dere, an' nobody ever sees her give away so much as a biscuit of her own.

"'Well,' spoms I, for I'se had sperunce of Sis Alviry befo', 'I ain't proud, an' a-looking' for no special honors, an' of I can speak a good way through de Golden Gate, hit'll satisfy ole Mirandy.'

"'But think,' she goes on, 'what a pride you'll take in havin' helped a po' but gifted, young gal to learn to play de piany, for I'se gittin' up a subscription to have Gladys Geraldine, what is full of talent go off an' study music.

"'I has already bin to Sis Hanna's, an' Sis Sally Suds, and Bess Jenkins, an' lots of de folks in de church, an' dey is done put their name down for somethin', an' I makes no doubt but what you will do de same, bein' as how you is a generous woman wid a heapin' hand.'

"'An' de long an' de shot of hit is, dat I does, an' gives up de money dat I really needs for a pair of new shoes to teach music to a gal dat don't know dat I'm nitre.

"'All dat she knows is how noble an' generous Sis Alviry is, an' yet Sis Alviry never give her a cent. All she done was to pass around de hat, an' take de credit for de good work.

"'Yassum! Dis time of year I shorely does git cold feet every time de post man stops at my do', for I knows dat he is got a lot of tickets for me for lectures, an' concerts, an' benefits dat I is requested to buy by folks dat takes dat way of makin' older folks give de charity dat dey ought to give deirselves.

"'But I'se done wid 'em, Yassum! I'se through! Dis ole nigger is havin' a hard enough time sprontin' her own angel wings. She ain't got no pin feather to spare in anybody's else's. You hear me! I'se a talkin'."

Bobbie's Pa In Training

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

LAST nite Pa brought hoam two (2) Injun clubs & a punching bag & showed them to Ma.

Well, said Ma, wat is the idee. The idee, sed Pa, is that I am going to reedooce. I am going to sprink off a little of this extra weight wich is fast getting me to the point were the ladies will no longer turn around & look at me on the street after I have passed them by. In other words, sed Pa, I am going to get into training at onst.

That be a first rate idee, sed Ma, if you will only keep it up. Oh, I will keep it up all rite, sed Pa, because I have a very strong will & anything wich I start out for to do I do it. There were four (4) of this exter weight wich is fast getting me to the point were the ladies will no longer turn around & look at me on the street after I have passed them by. In other words, sed Pa, I am going to get into training at onst.

So we all went into the library & Pa began to swing the clubs. He did pretty good at first and then one (1) of the clubs slipped & hit the library lamp and broke the lamp & the other club hit Pa in the hed rite ware the hair beegins to git skarse on the top of his neck.

After a minute Pa got up & then he sed to Ma, wich was crying, there, there, deer, dount cry. If it had been any other man than me, it wud have killed him, sed Pa.

But I was crying about the lamp, sed Ma. So you think most of the lamp than you do of this bump on my hed, sed Pa. Then Pa was mad & he threw the two (2) Injun clubs out in the yard & I went & got them & I would them to a nice bed for two (2) kits.

When I came back Ma was talking to Pa & he dount you try the punching bag now, Ma sed. It dount hard, like them clubs, and it wont bring lamps on yure hed, or brake lamps. Go ahed & give us a exhibishun with the bag, sed Pa, and I will watch you reedoocing.

Then Ma went out in the yard & began to set & I dident want to miss my dinner so I went out & began to set too. Then Pa calm to the yard.

Ware is the punching bag, sed Ma.

I have threw it away, sed Pa. It hit me on the nois & swoled up my noss very bad, as you see.

It seems to me, sed Ma, that with that great big lump on the back of yure hed & that other big swelling on the front, you are talking of weight & not talking it off.

Pa dident answer Ma, he ate (8) his dinner. This morning I went out in the yard & found the punching bag & now I kids is going to have a gymnasium in the barn.

Can Algernon Make You Climb This Big Pole?

ALGERNON MONTMORENCY, the boy wonder, picked up a little puzzle on the way to school the other day and flashed his genius on his little sister, Matilda, as follows:

"By the time that fellow has gone from the ground to the top of the pole, stepping on every spike, he left foot will have traveled forty-eight forty-ninths as far as his right foot.

"The spikes are a uniform distance apart, and I want you to tell me from the facts given just how many spikes there are in the pole."

Can you save Matilda embarrassment and answer Algernon's question?

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who send best answers to Puzzle Editor, in care of this paper. Be sure to state which numbers of the books you have already received, as from week to week you will have opportunity to win the complete set of six books.

A Predicament

By DOROTHY HARRISON.

SHE was desperately gone on them both. And couldn't think which one to choose;
'Twas rather perplexing, no doubt---
For one she was bound to refuse.

She gazed at them both in despair,
Quite puzzled to know what to do;
As soon as she thought about one
She cared for the other one, too.

They still remained under her gaze,
Not knowing the trouble they'd brought;
It really was hard to decide,
They both were so charming, she thought.

She couldn't say which one she'd have,
Her efforts fell hopelessly flat;
It's really exceedingly hard
Selecting an up-to-date hat!

THE WISDOM OF YOUTH

Both boys had been rude to their mother. She put them to bed earlier than usual, and then complained to their father about them. So he started up the stairway, and they heard him coming.

"Here comes Papa," said Maurice; "I am going to make believe I am asleep."

The Pinkies on a Waning Honeymoon

By KENNETH HARRIS.

YOUNG Mr. Pinkie's brows contracted ever so slightly, and young Mrs. Pinkie noticed it. "I'm afraid I'm a little heavy, darling," she said.

"Not the least little bit in the world, my own," he protested. "But perhaps you aren't quite comfy sitting here."

"The idea!" the young woman exclaimed. "You're just saying that to get rid of me, you bad boy. There, up, now!"

"Well, if you wouldn't mind just changing to the other side, sweetheart. You aren't a bit heavy, but---are you quite sure you wouldn't be easier in a chair?"

Mrs. Pinkie got up. "I wouldn't, but I'm going to, just to punish you," she said.

"You aren't a bit heavy."

Mr. Pinkie arose too and arranged cushions in the sleepy hollow, into which his wife sank with a sigh that sounded like relief.

"I believe you did want to sit in that chair all the time, girlie," said the young husband. "You just didn't want to hurt my feelings. That was it, wasn't it, you little angel?"

"You mean you wanted me to get up, and you were afraid little wifey would feel bad," scoffed little wifey. "You were a great big goosey gander, so there. And now may I have me if you want to very much. Wait a moment. You are sure that you want to?"

"If you say that, I'll pull you out of that chair and make you sit on my knee all evening," threatened Mr. Pinkie.

"Mercy!" exclaimed the young woman. "Then I won't say it. There! Now you move in your own chair, and sit down and enjoy yourself."

Isn't It Really Wonderful?

Mr. Pinkie obeyed. "Isn't it easy here though?" he said.

Mrs. Pinkie nodded and smiled.

"Isn't it wonderful, though?"

"Uhhh," resented Mrs. Pinkie, raising the hand with the wedding ring to her mouth. "Sense me, sweetness, I don't know what makes me so drowsy evenings, lately. So yawny, I mean. I don't really think I'm sleepy."

"Who-o-o-o-o!" said Mr. Pinkie. "It's catching. Why, no; you couldn't be sleepy, dear's treasure."

"What time is it?" asked the young woman, glancing at the clock opposite on the mantel. "That clock can't be right. It says six o'clock. It's eight."

Young Mr. Pinkie consulted his watch. "By Jiks! That's all it is," he exclaimed. "I thought it was much later. Wouldn't you like to read, pet?"

"No, thank you, darling."

"Sure, sweetheart?"

"I know, dearest. But I don't think I want to. Don't you want to read yourself?"

"Oh no."

"You know I wouldn't care in the least if you did."

"Really?" Honestly, I don't feel the least bit inclined to read. Of course, if you feel that you would like to---I know you would not mind if I did. We've got to read to keep up with the times. Both of us have our own way."

"If it's really our duty"

"Of course we have," echoed Mrs. Pinkie.

"Isn't it lovely to be in our own little nest, all by our two selves," said Mrs. Pinkie, after a pause.

"It's just too lovely for anything. Dear one, are you quite sure that your watch is right? It doesn't seem possible that it's only ten minutes to 8.

"Would you like to play cards?"

"No, let's not stupid playing cards, just two. We can't play anything but casino, and we've been playing casino so much I know. But, after all, isn't it just heavenly to be---"

"All alone by ourselves. Yes, darling boy."

"I was going to say isn't it wonderful how we both think the same things and have the same ideas? I was just wondering if it wasn't our duty to go over and see the Rivingtons for a little while this evening. We've invited them so ordinarily, and they really are awfully jolly people. I kind of hate to leave our little nest, though."

"Let's go," said Mrs. Pinkie, jumping up. "I'll just take me more linen a minute or two to slip on another dress. I'm sure I'm fast if anything," said young Mr. Pinkie, referring to his watch again. "Hurry then, Precious Thing."

Mrs. Pinkie scampered to the door and then stopped and said to her young husband and placed her hands on his shoulders.

"But you know that I wouldn't go if I didn't think it was my---our duty, don't you, dearie boy?" she said.

"Yes, precious," Mr. Pinkie. "But hurry, my own."

"Yes, la, la, la, la, la la," sang young Mrs. Pinkie as she died upstairs.

Young Mr. Pinkie grinned.

Perhaps a Fighting Woman Is NOT So Very Pleasing

But, Dr. Parkhurst, She Often GETS Things for Herself and Other Women

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

Dr. Parkhurst, whose writings we offer to our readers with pride three times each week, wrote yesterday about women. He wrote sympathetically and earnestly, as always.

We want to quote, however, and not entirely agree with one or two of his interesting statements.

Dr. Parkhurst says:

> That quality of feminine blatancy which is being at present so extensively advertised here and in England, that disposition toward self-exploitation indulged in by short-haired women and encouraged by long-haired men, is of a sort to chill and then to freeze over those masculine impulses that seek restful and satisfying companionnip in a member of the opposite sex.

A blatant woman ISN'T pleasant. A blatant MAN isn't pleasant. The energy and fury of a man or a woman rebelling against injustice are disagreeable to those that DO NOT FEEL THE PINCH OF THE INJUSTICE.

Those women in England are doing some violent things, chaining themselves to iron railings when they make their speeches, so that the policemen may not pull them away; insisting on going to jail to prove their sincerity, when they might go home to tea.

But we call the attention of Dr. Parkhurst to the fact that those same women ARE GETTING RESULTS. THEY WILL ACTUALLY GET THE VOTE IN ENGLAND. They are not nearly as blatant and not nearly as demonstrative as was Oliver Cromwell—he, too, got results.

The official English mind is slow, and has great contempt for the woman who gets more than two yards away from the teapot or cradle. But just now that same fat official mind has MORE than contempt for the Suffragettes. It begins to FEAR them, and to realize that they are in earnest.

Men OR women get what they go after WHEN THEY ARE IN EARNEST. Women have been playing a sweet, mild, coaxing part for centuries. Men have been playing the aggressive, fighting part. As a result men have all the OFFICES, all the MONEY, all the GLORY, most of the FUN, and women have the pleasure of being "a helpmate." The donkey, the cow and the hunting dog are also helpmates. The hunting dog especially. He runs and picks up the quail, and the man EATS IT.

The housewife makes the bed, and the man sleeps in it. She dusts the furniture, cleans the room, and he smokes in it. She cooks the dinner, and he eats it.

She brings the child into the world with infinite suffering and HE brags about it, and actually has the impertinence to claim it and call it HIS when they separate.

Dr. Parkhurst says:

> It would be just as easy to fall in love with an avalanche or with a blizzard as with a woman's rights woman. And a woman that is not of a kind to fall in love with misses both her opportunity and her destiny.

Some women will tell Dr. Parkhurst and others that they are not sitting up nights wondering whether somebody is going "to fall in love with them."

A man who feels that he ought to do something in this world goes ahead and tries to do it.

He doesn't ask himself whether somebody will "fall in love" with him if he becomes a butcher of men or of sheep, if he becomes a stock gambler or a hog seller. He attends to his hogs, or stocks, or killing, and lets the loving take care of itself.

Isn't it conceivable that woman should have a purpose and convictions dearer to her than the unutterably blissful possibility of somebody falling in love with her and allowing her to dust the furniture ever after?

The best thing about this equal suffrage movement is the fact THAT IT INDICATES WOMAN'S DETERMINATION TO BE SOMETHING BETTER THAN A NICE PINK TOY IN THE BEGINNING AND A WRINKLED OLD "HELPMATE" IN THE END.

Man says to woman, "In your youth you shall be busy bearing my children, suffering the cursed pain of the race, and in your old age you shall sit around, more or less neglected at best. And I shall be happy and energetic and agreeably busy all the time."

Women of intelligence are getting a little tired of that sweet arrangement. And if anybody tells them that it is Biblical, that doesn't in the least alter their determination to change it.

It's Biblical for man to earn his living in the sweat of his brow, but HE WRIGGLES OUT OF THAT COMMAND AND LETS SOMEBODY ELSE DO THE SWEATING JUST AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

As a matter of fact, we don't believe that Dr. Parkhurst is right when he says that it would be "as easy to fall in love with a blizzard as with a woman's rights woman." A woman's rights woman has got to have brains, to begin with. And a man falls in love with brains, if he happens to have any himself.

The woman's rights advocates, as we have observed them, represent a superior brand of womankind. They have good foreheads and earnest faces, and we would rather trust an orphan child with one of them than trust it to some cowlike lady with sawdust in her head and her whole soul bent on making herself look neat when her husband gets home.

The Boston American's advice to women is, GO AHEAD AND GET POWER THROUGH THE VOTE. Go look at the women that HAVE POWER. Look at Mrs. Sage, or Helen Gould, or even at one of the society geese that can issue fashionable invitations. SEE HOW POLITE MEN ARE TO THEM. They need never be lonely. They are not neglected. They are not forever told, "You don't understand such things."

On the contrary, each word that they utter is picked up and appreciated, and their lives are full of interest, BECAUSE THEY HAVE POWER.

Get POWER, women, and don't be afraid to appear in public, and don't be afraid to take your share in government. Remember that what is worth having is worth asking for, and asking loudly enough to be heard.

Dr. Parkhurst quotes "the name of Mary, the mother of Jesus." It's an excellent quotation, but it fits the other side rather than Dr. Parkhurst's side. In public, at the foot of the cross, on the day of the crucifixion, women were kneeling, protesting as well as their weakness would allow, against injustice, and those same women were the first at the tomb, full of hope, to witness the resurrection. They didn't stay at home and say, "This is not our business, we must leave it to the men." They went up to Golgotha, with the soldiers, and went down to the tomb where the soldiers were on guard.

> "And many women were there. * * * Among which was Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedie's children * * *
> "And he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre and departed.
>
> "And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre."

Wherever you find a great movement of religion, or social rebellion against injustice, you find WOMEN ACTIVE AND PROMINENT AND WELCOME. And men are glad enough to have their help when THEY want it.

This fight for equal suffrage is one that women must make for themselves. The woman that fails is a shirker or a sheep. If a sheep, she should only be pitied. If a shirker, she deserves blame.

Two Kinds of Women in the World

By Lilian Bell

THERE is one very simple test of character which I recommend even to the wayfaring man—so simple that a child may apply it—nay, children apply it instinctively and act upon it knowingly, for young children act with the unerring instinct of animals, which is their protection before intuition and reason are developed.

This test is the test of helpfulness.

All women are divided into but two classes—the helpless in this world and the helped.

Apply it where you will, from your own grandmother down to the youngest girl who has outgrown her babyhood. It is but another term for the strongly maternal woman, who instinctively reaches out to help the helpless, from a wounded animal up through the stages of helpless childhood, until she reaches the pathetic spectacle of a helpless man who needs the sort of protecting love and moral support which she was born to give, whereupon she marries him and improves the breed by injecting her robust quality of self-help into her sons, who, when their turn comes, will probably marry a helpless woman and coddle her through life, to the disgust of those who do not understand the inexorable working of Nature's law of compensation.

If men applied but this one test in selecting wives there would be far less disturbed thought in the married world.

A strong, capable, generous, robust, money-making man, of limited refinement and stunted sensibilities, is never attracted to the strong-souled, self-reliant woman, and he would be inclined to overlook the small signs by which the strongly maternal woman is to be recognized, even in the embryo.

The young girl who is never too rushed to help an old man off the car, or who can but see a woman with a baby and a two-year-old and several bundles without being impelled to go out of her way to pilot them safely across a crowded street, is the sort of girl who will mother a man, just because she mothers the helpless wherever she finds them.

Such women are steadfast to adversity and wear themselves out unwittingly in their inevitable calling of being among the world's helpers.

The shoulders of the woman helpers of this world always bear the heel prints of the helpless women who have climbed to safety and success over their proffered assistance and willingly offered help.

Sometimes, alas, the heel prints are of women, who have climbed into chorus-girl smiles over the work-worn shoulders of farthest wives.

Yet men, as a rule, are more honorable—more just, let me say—in an effort to pay back a woman's help.

Often the effort is clumsy and the style of payment an insult; but men are not as conscienceless, as a sex, as women.

A woman who divorced her husband would cheerfully take his last dollar and all the children, if the court would let her.

The man, if he is a man, is always willing to give the woman something, for men have been taught to "pay the fiddler," and women, as a rule, will jump any claim they can.

Women have never been taught responsibility. The immoral precepts taught them from the cradle to get all they can from father, brother, lover and husband, by means of their helplessness and their physical charms, are some of the reasons why women can drive, unbridled and often rob another woman and then lunch with her and eat her salt, with a clear conscience and a guileless mien.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE SYSTEM

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I heartily approve your editorial of March 9 on the "Plutocratic System." Why, indeed, don't the people learn that lesson? However, I think that they are learning, slowly to be sure, but learning, nevertheless. The fruits of the system's work will continue, of course, because you can't eradicate evil from men's hearts —principally the evil of greed. But they won't "get away with it" so easily as they have in the past. Juries are commencing to convict these fellows, and while they frequently escape through some later judicial interpretation of the law, still I think the more recently appointed judges are not so likely to interpret the law in that way—in other words, that there is a modern judicial idea. When the older judges have retired and the younger ones take their places, I think that there will be a vast difference. The modern spirit is growing everywhere. W. W. B. ROSS.

ROOSEVELT'S MEMORY WILL LIVE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have been a reader of the AMERICAN for two years or more and have been loud in its praise and shall continue to be for its editorials are without equal on this continent. They contain the best food for thought that can be found in all American journalism. In connection with the editorial of March 5, Mr. Roosevelt was not perfection, but I believe he was the man for the times, and that McKinley's mantle fell on the right one and that the memory of Roosevelt will live in the hearts of the American people long after such men as Bryan, Tillman and Forster have gone into oblivion. E. J. CHAMPLIN.
